Mrs. Annie M. Bradley, Bravely Meeting Attacks of Prosecutor

Sketches by Artist Perley of the AMERICAN staff at the trial, showing Mrs. Bradley in act of replying to questions of District Attorney, and scene of fatal shooting, as described by herself. Photo is of Mrs. Annie Adams, mother of Maude Adams, who is said to have been engaged to Senator Brown.

MOTHER KILLS TWO CHILDREN AND HERSELF

Mrs. Jessie F. Hedges of Newtonville Turns on Gas and Dies with Her Two Boys—Bodies Found with Young Victims Clasped in Mother's Arms.

Mrs. Jessie F. Hedges, wife of the manager of a Boston cutlery firm, and her two sons were found dead in a spare room at their home, No. 20 Lowell avenue, Newtonville, to-day, by a servant, Catherine McIntosh.

Death was caused by gas. The only gas-cock in the room was turned on full force. The windows and register were tightly closed. The keyhole had been stuffed with paper.

Mrs. Hedges was lying on the bed with an arm tightly clasped about each boy.

It was plainly a case of murder and suicide.

To all outward appearances they had retired for the night and all three had apparently been overcome by the fumes as they lay asleep.

Send Hurry Call to Husband.

Will T. Hedges, the husband and father, had been away from home for three days. In Mrs. Hedges's handwriting was found his route list, and by means of this neighbors succeeded in reaching him over the telephone and asked him to hurry home.

He was not told what had happened. J. H. Stanley, a member of the firm of Landers, Frary & Clark, No. 594 Washington street, by whom Mr. Hedges is employed, has gone to meet him and break the news as gently as possible.

The Hedges came from Mansfield, O., about two years ago. Mrs. Hedges, who was a beautiful woman, thirty-two years of age, was prominent in the work of the Women's Guild of Newton.

Her two sons who died with her were William French and Butler Todd. "French," as he was called by his playmates, was eleven years old and a pupil at the Horace Mann school. Butler, six years, attended a Newton kindergarten.

Mrs. Hedges had for several months suffered from extreme nervous trouble, but according to her neighbors and friends she had not shown the slightest evidence of intending to end her life or the lives of her children.

Called Boys to Death.

Catherine McIntosh retired just before 9 o'clock last night as Mrs. Hedges and the children were preparing for bed. The servant girl did not notice anything strange. She slept on the upper floor of the house.

Instead of retiring to her own room Mrs. Hedges prepared the small spare room, large enough only for a bed, two chairs and a dresser. Then she called her two boys from their room, and probably gave some excuse why she wanted them to remain with her for the night.

A few minutes before 8 o'clock to-day Miss McIntosh came down stairs, and as usual went to the room of French and Butler to call them to breakfast. She saw that the boys had not slept in their room, and went to that usually occupied by Mrs. Hedges. To her surprise she failed to find her mistress.

As she stepped from the last room the servant girl detected an odor of gas and followed it to the spare room. She turned the handle and found the door unlocked. The odor that rushed out almost stifled the girl, but her one glance had shown her the three silent forms on the bed, and for the moment she thought they were asleep.

NOTIFY MEDICAL EXAMINER.

When the girl recovered her composure she managed to turn off the gas and throw open a window. Then she telephoned for Dr. Talbot. On the arrival of the physician he saw that the three were beyond any aid that he could render, and he sent in a call for Dr. West, the medical examiner.

Neighbors in the meantime came to the house and took charge of affairs. Miss McIntosh collapsed and could do nothing to assist. Mr. Terrill called up J. H. Stanley of the firm and told him what had happened.

Great excitement prevailed in the exclusive neighborhood in which the Hedges family lived. It was at first not believed that Mrs. Hedges could have ended her own life and that of her two sons.

It was recalled that the mother spent yesterday afternoon in town shopping and Miss McIntosh says that she noticed nothing wrong when she returned home.

SWEETHEARTS IN YOUTH.

Both Mr. Hedges and his wife were devoted to each other and to their children. They had a beautiful home and neighbors often remarked how much each appeared to enjoy being in the othtr's company. They often told the story of having been boy and girl sweethearts in their old home in Ohio. They were married about twelve years ago.

When the news of the tragedy spread through the neighborhood a large crowd gathered. The curtains were pulled down. Playmates of French and Butler calling for them at the usual hour were mystified because no one would tell them what had happened.

In the back hall were the bicycles that the two little fellows had ridden home from schaal last night, left just where they tossed them when they came in the house. The neighbors who knew the bright, manly chaps cried when they saw them.

The greatest sympathy is felt for the husband, who arrives to-day, to have the tragedy broken to him as gently as possible.

DEMAND MAYOR SIGN ARTS SCHOOL CONTRACT

SCHOOL BOARD, THROUGH STORROW, SENDS CAUSTIC LETTER TO CITY HALL.

Declaring that there is no good or sufficient reason why Mayor Fitzgerald should withhold his signature to the contract for the badly needed addition to the eMchanic Arts High School, James J. Storrow, chairman of the Boston School Board, read a caustic letter before the board last night, in which he urged drastic action to compel action at the hands of the Mayor. A copy of the letter, in which a rebuke to Mayor Fitzgerald is read, was received by the Mayor to-day.

The school board adopted resolutions demanding that the Mayor take action to hurry along the work of making more room at the badly overcrowded school, and ordered the copy of the following letter be sent to the Mayor:

Text of Letter.

"To the Members of the School Committee:

"I desire to call to your attention officially, for such action as seems appropriate, the fact that although the Finance Commission, to which the Mayor has referred the matter, has decided that 'it is, therefore, expedient for the city to proceed with the enlargement of the Mechanic Arts High School, without delay,' and that, although this necessity has been clear for a matter of half a dozen years, and has been passed on by three superintendents and several successive School Boards, the Mayor's signature to all contracts for the construction and equipment of the building is being withheld now on the ground that the Building Trades Section of the Central Labor Union has made objection to the contract for heating and ventilating being awarded to the lowest bidder.

"It may well be that this is a matter which His Honor the Mayor should investigate, but it is obvious that there is no good and sufficient reason why the general building contract should not be signed now, as the heating and ventilating contract is independent of the main contract for the building, and we are informed that the rest of the work can go forward without delay and without embarrassment, even if the heating and ventilating contract is not signed for some time.

"It seems clear that the work of constructing this important and long deferred addition should be immediately commenced. Yours respectfully,

"JAMES J. STORROW,
"Chairman Boston School Committee."

Chairman Storrow in an address before the Old Schoolboys' Association at Young's Hotel last night said:

"The change in the form of school government, by which the old school board of twenty-four members has been done away with, speaks for itself, and I do not need to make a comparison. With twenty-four members and twenty-five wards it was almost impossible for candidates to refrain from politics, and they were dependent upon the 'boss' who gave them their positions. With such a large number of representatives, speech-making was the rule and the simplest suggestion had to be arranged in the form of an oration. Politics also made sensational heads in the newspapers and the position, instead of being one where a man or woman gave all of his or her time to the subject in hand, was constantly, about election time, only that of being prominent in the newspapers.

"Under the present system the superintendent of schools is present at every meeting, and has as much to say as to the conduct of the school committee as any of the members.

"Gentlemen, about this time of the year we read sensational statements concerning the board in the newspapers and for the next three weeks we will continue to see them. Then they will vanish. If we want good schools, it is evident that we must have a disinterested and unpolitical School Board.

"When we consider the environments of children brought up in the city streets today we must realize the task set before any body of men to weld them into good citizens."

ONE-ARMED TRADER STRANGELY GONE

DANVERS, Nov. 21.—Great mystery surrounds the sudden disappearance of Herman Funke of Newbury street, this town, a one-armed trader, sixty-three years of age, and the police are to-day searching everywhere for him. Funke was shaving yesterday, and in some way cut a small gash in his throat. He started to walk to the hospital, which was not far away, but disappeared.

SHOT FOR DESTROYING PICTURE OF CZAR

ODESSA, Nov. 21.—The trial by a special military court of twenty-seven [illegible] of the Eleventh Nicholas I. Regiment, [illegible] charges of mutiny and insu[illegible] came to an end yesterday. [illegible] and one private who had destroyed a picture of Emperor Nicholas were sentenced to deth and at once shot, nine other men were sent out to the mines for life, twelve were sent to the mines for ten years, and the others were acquitted.

MRS. HARTJE WINS IN SUPERIOR COURT

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 21.—The Superior Court has decided in favor of Mrs. Hartje.

WESTON OFF FOR CHICAGO FROM TOLEDO

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 21.—Edward P. Weston, the pedestrian, arrived here on his way to Chicago at 11 a. m. He has apparently recovered from his illness and is making comparatively good time, although the roads are in very bad shape.

He spent an hour here, then resumed his trip West. Yesterday was Weston's poorest day. He made but twenty-three miles. He came here this morning from Woodville, eighteen miles.

EXCOMMUNICATION FOR "MODERNISTS"

ROME, Nov. 21.—The Osservatoire Romano, the organ of the Vatican, has published a statement from the Pope in which is set forth that all decisions, past or future, reached by the biblical commission in the matter of the interpretation of the last syllabus and the encyclical against modernism in the faith shall have the same binding effect on the conscience as have the decrees issued by the congregations. The statement reiterates the terms of the previous encyclical against modernism and says that the penalty of excommunication shall be used upon those who contradict or oppose either the syllabus or the encyclical.

SINGER DIES OF WOUND.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—John S. Buckingham, the choir singer who shot his wife and self Monday, died to-day. Mrs. Buckingham is still in a critical condition.

MRS. BRADLEY ON RACK PARRIES PROSECUTOR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Somewhat nervous, but bravely replying to the searching questions of Prosecutor Baker, Mrs. Annie M. Bradley, on trial for her life for slaying Former Arthur Brown, of Utah, is to-day undergoing one of the severest grillings ever meted out by an inquisitor.

Every effort of the prosecution is bein centered on breaking down her pathetic story of love, disgrace and catastrophe. From every point her recital is being attached. Her whole life history is under fire.

As she went to the stand Mrs. Bradley seemed to waver and hesitate, as if she feared the ordeal before her. Then her lips slightly tightened, her hands clenched, and she resumed her place.

TELLS OF HER LIFE ON RANCH.

The District Attorney took up his cross-examination with Mrs. Bradley's going to the farm, where in 1902 she saw Max Brown, son of the former Senator, who objected to her presence. Thence the incidents were followed up to the arrest of Brown and Mrs. Bradley in Salt Lake.

"How many times were you arrested?" asked the prosecutor.

"Three or four times."

TEDDY-B AND TEDDY-G, THE BEAR DETECTIVES IN THE SUNDAY AMERICAN, HAVE MADE A HIT

MRS. BRADLEY FIGHTS FOR LIFE

"Yet you continued to live with Brown?"

"Yes."

"You had a great deal of influence over Brown, did you not?"

"It was a mutual influence, I thought, over each other."

Mr. Baker asked her about the visit of her pastor, Rev. David Utter, to her at the Brown ranch. This visit was at the instance of Mrs. Brown. Arthur Brown had become jealous and accused her by long distance telephone of arranging a fishing trip with him.

ACCUSED BY SENATOR.

"I was so hurt and maddened by his charge that I went at once to Salt Lake and told him the truth, which was that Mrs. Brown had sent Dr. Utter to plead with me to leave the Senator. When I told the Senator this he was very much incensed with MrMs. Brown and sent me back to the farm that night."

"Tell me the story of your meeting with Mrs. Brown in Pocatello," said Mr. Baker.

"I was in Pocatello with Senator Brown."

"He had gone alone and you followed him?"

DIVORCE PLANNED.

"Yes, because he telephoned me to do so."

"Tell me what was said at that meeting."

"We talked about the situation and the prospect of getting a divorce. Mrs. Brown said: 'The Senator says that Arthur Brown is not his child.'

"I answered, 'Does he?—He says that Max is not his child.' She said to him, 'Is that so?' He answered, 'Yes, I did say it. He is so unlike me that I have often thought so.'

"Mrs. Brown said: 'Well, I will get a divorce if you will give me the Brigham street house, and give the farm to Max.'

"Did not Mr. Brown makes charges against you on that occasion?"

"I don't remember that he did on that occasion. But he had done so a thousand times. He was insanely jealous."

"Brown Insanely Jealous."

"Did he not refer to Schroeder, Evans, McGuire and the priest?"

"Not then, but he did so at other times. I have said that he was insanely jealous."

Mrs. Bradley then identified a letter in which she pleaded with him to lay aside his foolish jealousy.

Mr. Baker insisted upon knowing whom she meant by the priest.

"It was what the Senator always called Dr. Utter, and I fell into the habit."

Shortly before noon the cross-examination of Mrs. Bradley was closed.

LOVE FOR BROWN SHARPLY ATTACKED BY PROSECUTOR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The sincerity of Mrs. Bradley's love for former Senator Brown was attacked at the opening of District Attorney Baker's cross-examination.

Mrs. Bradley struck back with brutal, reckless frankness that seemed almost like a challenge hurled in the face of the court. Baker had read a letter from Mrs. Bradley to Brown, suggesting that Mrs. Brown be turned from their Brigham street house.

It was a damaging document. Mrs. Bradley admitted writing it, with a glance straight at the District Attorney. Her strength apparently had risen to meet the attack.

"You were trying to break up that home?" asked Baker.

"I was not," she cried. "For two years the Senator had determined to go on with me, and I believed it was a settled thing."

"Weren't you determined," began the District Attorney.

"Certainly I was determined," she exclaimed, cutting him short, her eyes flashing, her cheeks aflame with the first color they have shown.

"You believed his wife had no right to object to you?" he said.

"Yes, I did."

"Didn't you tell Senator Brown that his daughter, Alice, and his son, Max, needed nothing?" demanded Baker.

"I told him," she cried, "that they didn't need the same protecting care as our two little children."

"Before the break came you visited Mrs. Brown often?"

"No more than Mrs. Brown visited me," was the quick reply.

"You frequently took dinner at Mrs. Brown's?"

"I took no more meals at her house than she took at mine."

"Weren't you and Mrs. Brown intimate acquaintances?" insisted Baker.

"It was purely a social acquaintance," she answered, coldly.

Cleverly Parries Prosecutor.

And so went on for forty-five minutes a battle worth watching, with the prosecutor pressing forward always and Mrs. Bradley ever alert, guarding herself at every point.

She admitted Arthur Brown, Jr., was born while Clarence Bradley was still her husband, living with her in the same house, the rent for which was being paid by Senator Brown. She acknowledged that, even after this event, she continued to visit Mrs. Brown and to receive her in her home. She avowed the authorship of letters in which Mrs. Brown is reviled, ridiculed and scorned.

Previous to going under cross-examination yesterday, Mrs. Bradley had related the dramatic story of the shooting. With down-cast and tearful eyes, she had identified more than one hundred letters which had passed between the Senator and herself, as well as the letter from Mrs. Annie Adams to Brown, which is described as the immediate cause of the tragedy.

She ended the day in a fit of hysterical weeping. Hudled in the corner of a sofa, down in the cellroom, she called upon her dead love to vindicate her sincerity.

"I did not mean to influence the Senator to part from his wife," she sobbed. "But he was constantly saying he wanted me for his wife, and he rebuked me when I did not sympathize with his plans.

"I begged him at the beginning not to drag us both into what would only lead to misery, but he never ceased to pursue me.

"He constantly, and against my will, confided in me all his troubles with his wife. I did not break up his home. He and his wife were estranged before I knew either of them, and all Salt Lake City knew it."

Mrs. Bradley's story of the slaying of Brown was dramatic in the extreme.

"I can recall nothing," she said. "I lost my senses and was awakened to the surroundings only when I heard a shot and saw the Senator lying there, fatally wounded."

As the prisoner recounted the tragic death she was again overcome, but after a short rest she regained her composure and went on with her testimony.

Questioned by her lawyer, she denied planning the murder, saying she had no intention to kill. She was distracted she declared.

After she had been questioned on the murder, Judge Powers, her lawyer, produced the famous letter of Mrs. Annie Adams, which Mrs. Bradley had found in Brown's room, and she identified it and the missive was read to the jury. Following this, District Attorney Baker began his cross-examination if Mrs. Bradley, and the prisoner was still under fire of the prosecutor when court adjourned for the day.

District Attorney Baker's cross-examination was severe.

Once during the proceedings she was asked the question: "Did you at any time think of ending your life?"

"Yes," she answered. "I was in the lowest depths of despair." She said she had determined to go away, and even then he dissuaded her.

"Did you then love him?" asked Mr. Powers.

"Yes," was the answer.

At every opportunity she repeated the words, "I loved him."

2 ALARMS FOR TWO FIRES IN ONE HOUSE

Two alarms were sent in early to-day for two fires in the one-story wooden building, No. 97 Charles street, occupied as a grocery store by Frank W. Barnes. When the firemen responded to the first call the chimney was on fire. A half hour later the blaze was again seen and this time the firemen tore down part of the wall to get at the blaze. The damage was about $100.

This Letter Sounded Brown's Death Knell

Judge Powers has made it evident that it is his intention to attempt to prove that the discovery of this letter from Mrs. Annie Adams to former Senator Brown made it evident to Mrs. Bradley that another had taken the place in his affections to which she felt she had a right, and supplied the immediate motive for his killing:

"Saturday, P. M., Dec. 1, '06.
"Philadelphia, Pa.

"My Dearie! My Dearie!

"The world seems to have taken on another hue, because perchance I've heard from you—from you—which means so much. I was, I told you, very fearful of the contre-temps at the house and sorry it could not have been avoided. I think your idea of living there must be given up. I wondered at gates being open after I passed—bolts and bars would seem the proper thing. Poor, misguided soul, who can't see better results from a more dignified procedure and give what courage and strength it requires for continued onslaught. I wish the Winter were over. I do hope you can arrange a change of date for case mentioned, but do not worry more than necessary. What is to be will be, and right must prevail in the end—so they tell us. I shall not be in the bill week after next (tenth) and they say for four or five weeks, or until Boston; and may stay in New York or where I please. Will know definitely next week and write you at W. I do so wish you to have a pleasant time in New York and trust time shall be arranged. I fear this will hardly reach you before leaving S. L., and may send it to W. instead if address comes, and it should, by Monday. You say I must hate with your hate, love with your love—love you. The latter part I can pledge myself to, but hate has never seemed a component part of my make-up somehow. Perhaps, dear, you can discover it somewhere and then we can devise the best use for it if the necessity arises, but love ever seems the best, and I hope ever will be, for I am overflowing with that sweetest and dearest of human thought and feeling for you, and you are all, so you see there is no room for aught else. That is my religion, and you and I are to become true believers in the divine command, 'Love ye another'—believest thou this?—I answer, yea, verily. I spent my Thanksgiving Day giving thanks for you and my very happy state of feeling which one year ago I never dreamed could be possible. It seems too sweet to be real. I am not going to send this until I get address, so possess my soul in patience.

"Dec. 5th—So surprised to learn you are en route, and so glad. Have been fearful of many things. I will write you tomorrow at length on my movements. I think we leave here early on Sunday, 9th, or Monday, for New Jersey. My cousin, too, has written me she is coming on to N. J. from Canada. However, will arrange and write you fully. How soon must you get back home? Let me know either here or Empire Theatre, New York. Must get to work. Love, dear heart—answer.

"Please return clipping." "ANNIE.

POSTOFFICES ARE REFUSING BANK CHECKS

Boston Sub-Treasury's Withdrawal from Clearing House Cause of New Rule.

MUST NOW SHIP CURRENCY

Owing to the withdrawal of the Sub-Treasury from the Clearing House, which is understood to be only temporary, the assistant United States Treasurer in this city has been obliged to refuse bank checks in payment of postoffice desposits in this district. The result is that all postoffices depositing with the Boston Sub-Treasury are required to ship their receipts in currency.

When the sub-treasury was in the Clearing House, it was able to accept the cashiers' checks of approved banks in lieu of currency, because it could probptly handle the checks, and this method obviated the less convenient method of currency shipments.

"When we withdrew from the Clearing House a month ago," said Chief Clerk E. L. Potter to-day, explaining the change in rule, "we had no means of handling the checks. Until we go back to the Clearing House we are obliged to take currency."

This change is being noticed by minor postoffices now, some of them which sent in cashiers' checks being obliged to take back the checks and send in currency instead. When this is done it is necessary for the shipper to keep a record of the number of every bill. In case United States postoffice money is lost, therefore, the bills can be traced by numbers.

It is natural for the intelligent purchaser to depend more and more upon big trade-mark names for security. Take "Queen Quality" shoes. The reputation of that name has cost a million dollars, and it is worth that today. Can the makers afford to stamp that name upon any shoe that would discredit it? Can they afford to sacrifice quality? You know it stands for your protection. That's why it easily leads all other women's shoes in the world. Just try one pair.

Charcoal, pure, simple charcoal, absorbs 100 times its own volume of gas. Where does the gas go to? It is just absorbed by the charcoal,—the gas disappears and there is left a pure, fresh, sweet atmosphere, free from all impurities and germs.

That's what happens in your stomach when you take one or two of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges, the most powerful purifiers science has yet discovered.

You belch gas in company, sometimes, by accident, greatly to your own humiliation. That is because there is a great amount of gas being formed in your stomach by fermenting food. Your stomach is not digesting your food properly. Gas is inevitable. Whenever this happens, just take one or two of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges right after eating, and you will be surprised how quickly they will act. No more belchings; no more sour risings. Eat all you want and what you want, and then if there is any gas going to be formed, one of these wonderful little absorbers, a Stuart Charcoal Lozenge, will take care of all the gas.

And it will do more than that. Every particle of impurity in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away by the charcoal. No one seems to know why it does this, but it does, and does it wonderfully. You notice the difference in your appetite, general good feeling, and in the purity of your blood, right away.

You'll have no more bad taste in your mouth or bad breath, either from drinking, eating or smoking. Other people will notice your bad breath quicker than you will yourself. Make your breath pure, fresh and sweet, so when you talk to others you won't disgust them. Just one or two Stuart Charcoal Lozenges will make your breath sweet, and make you feel better all over for it. You can eat all the onions and odorous foods you want, and no one can tell the difference.

Besides, charcoal is the best laxative known. You can take a whole boxful and no harm will result. It is a wonderfully easy regulator.

And then, too, it filters your blood,—every particle of poison or impurity in your blood is destroyed, and you begin to notice the difference in your face first thing,—your clear complexion.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made from pure willow charcoal, and just a little honey is put in to make them palatable, but not too sweet.

They will work wonders in your stomach, and make you feel fine and fresh. Your blood and breath will be purified.

We want to prove all this to you, so just send for a free sample today. Then after you get it and use it, you will like them so well that you will go to your druggist and get a 25c box of these Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 200 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

TWO LEADING REPUBLICANS WHO SAY HIBBARD CANNOT BE ELECTED

"Why should Republicans of this city consider now nominating the Republican postmaster of this city? It is absolutely impossible to elect him."—Extract from sermon of Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, Nov. 10.

MOTHER OF SLAIN GIRL TAKES WITNESS STAND

MRS. BROWN TO TESTIFY AGAINST PETSOLD IN TRIAL AT PROVIDENCE.

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 21.—Mrs. William Brown to-day takes the stand at the trial of Ernest Petsold, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Helen May Brown at Burrillville last August, to tell of the special delivery letter which informed her that her child was dead.

Mrs. Brown, who lived at the NcNally farm with her daughter, as housekeeper for Petsold, has been in court ever since the trial of the young German began. She heard the case of the State outlined by Assistant Attorney General James C. Collins, Jr., in which he said that the State would show that Petsold made threats against the child's life if the mother should ever leave him.

Several times the mother almost broke down. She is ready, however, to tell all that she knows of the events immediately preceding the night when she went to the farmhouse with her husband and found Helen dead on the bed.

Refreshed by Sleep.

Petsold appeared in the court room today looking refreshed by a good night's sleep.

Assistant Attorney-General Collins said that evidence would be introduced tending to show that Mrs. Brown, mother of the child, was employed by Petsold as housekeeper in February, and that the girl came there in April.

On Saturday, August 10, Mrs. Brown went to Providence and thence to Fairhaven, Mass., to visit her mother. Returning to this city she desired to do some shopping and went to the Perry House, where Petsold called on her on Wednesday, August 14. The testimony would show, Mr. Collins continued, that he acted strangely, especially in regard to what he said about the child, Helen. He told the mother that the girl was all right. Mrs. Brown gave him a box of candy for her and said that she would be home the next day.

Says Death by Violence.

Petsold went home and on Thursday Mrs. Brown had received a special delivery letter from him saying that the child was dead. Mrs. Brown had gone to Vanity Fair, where her husband was employed, and with him she went to the Petsold house and found the child dead in bed, in one of the rooms. Dr. George A. Harris of Chepachet was called Thursday night, and the next day performed an autopsy, the results of which showed, Mr. Collins claimed, that death was produced by violence and that the child had been dead two or three days. It would also be shown, he said, that Petsold had made threats against the child's life if the mother should attempt to take her away.

Petsold knew, said Mr. Collins, that Mrs. Brown intended to leave him and go back to live with her husband. He could not be found when Mr. and Mrs. Brown arrived at the house Thursday night, but gave himself up about a week later to an officer at nearly midnight, stating that he had gone to Mapleville to make some purchases and on returning found the child lying unconscious under an apple tree; that he had thrown some water in her face and she revived at first, but died that same night.

HUNDREDS SEE BOY HURLED TO DEATH BY AUTO

Providence Motorist Held in $7,000 Bail on Charge of Manslaughter.

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 21.—Elisha Arnold, fourteen years old, who was struck by an automobile while on Broad street in Pawtuxet early last evening, died early to-day. The driver and owner of the machine, Edward J. McCabe, a real estate broker of No. 306 Broadway, this city, was arrested by Constable Herbert Lee and detained at the Edgewood Police Station. McCabe is held in $7,000 bail on a charge of manslaughter.

The boy was the son of George B. Arnold of Selkirk road, Pawtuxet. The lad was with his father, mother and sister last evening at the fair of the Pawtuxet Baptist Church. The parade of the Pawtuxet Volunteer Fire Department, held in connection with the event, called the boy from the church to see the men pass by. He ran up the road to meet the parade, which was headed by the fife and drum corps. Capering about with several other lads of about his own age he ran ahead of the procession on the way back to the church and was some distance to the front of those marching at the head of the line.

The automobile, a twenty-eight horsepower Oldsmobile, came tearing down the road. Before the startled spectators realized the perilous position of the Arnold boy the automobile had run him down.

The boy's body was dragged almost fifty feet before the operator could stop the machine. The unconscious boy was carried into the house of William M. Lee, No. 2,163 Broad street, and Dr. C. F. Westcott was called. An examination disclosed a skull fracture at the base of the brain. Besides this the boy sustained internal injuries of a serious nature. The lad remained unconscious to the time of his death.

BERESFORD THREATENS TO RESIGN

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, commander of the English Channel fleet, has delivered his ultimatum to First Lord of the Admiralty Sir John Fisher, according to high authority. Admiral Sir Percy Scott must retire or he himself will resign.

Sir John Fisher, it is said, has determined, and perhaps already admitted to Lord Charles, that he will support Sir Percy, so naval officers generally are looking for the Channel fleet commander's early retirement.

The trouble originated with Lord Charles' order summoning the cruiser squadron under Sir Percy to quit gunnery practice and furnish the ships in anticipation of the Kaiser's visit. Sir Percy's method of transmitting the order to the other ships struck Lord Charles as "flippant and insubordinate."

HOWLING GALE DUE TO REACH BOSTON TODAY

Storm warnings are being displayed today all along the Atlantic coast. The weather man says a storm of unusual severity is sweeping eastward from Lake Michigan and is due in Boston sometime to-day. The special storm picked to hit Boston is reported as a combination of two storms, one of which swept up the Mississippi Valley to meet another coming eastward from Montana. This storm is expected to come eastward with a gale of forty miles an hour and a heavy downpour of rain, unless there is a marked drop in temperature, which would would mean a fall of snow. The coastwise shipping has received due warning of the coming storm and outgoing vessels have taken every precaution against surprise.

The coldest place reported last night was Greenville, Me., where the mercury stood at sixteen above. In Boston it was thirty-six above.

GEN. BANCROFT HAS RELAPSE

Brigadier-General Hugh Bancroft, judge-advocate on the staff of Governor Guild, and District Attorney of Middlesex County, who has been ill with typhoid fever at his home, No. 253 Newbury street, since October 30, has had a relapse. Dr. E. H. Stevens of Cambridge, who is attending General Bancroft, said to-day that the patient has not reached a dangerous stage, but he is a very sick man.

ROXBURY MAN MISSING.

Mrs. John A. McKenzie of Roxbury notified the police officers at headquarters that her husband has been missing since October 29, when he started for work.

NEWPORT GIRL OF 16 A BRIDE

Special to the Boston American.

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 21.—Tired of waiting for the marriage of Count Laszlos Szechenyi and Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, fearing possibly that the international wedding would never take place, DeLoss Scott, son of Police Sergeant David I. Scott, and employed by Alfred G. Vanderbilt as an electrician at Oakland Farm, and pretty Miss May Austin went to Boston, where they were married and to-day are receiving the congratulations of their many friends here.

The bride is but sixteen years of age. She is the granddaughter of the late William Austin, who for years was Newport's leading painter and decorator.

'OUTSIDE' LINE STARTS JAN. 1

The plans for the New Haven road's new "outside" line, which the water front believes was established to compete with the Metropolitan line, were announced to-day.

They provide that the New Haven will put on the route two of the three steamers it recently built at a cost of approximately $1,000,000 each. They are the Old Colony, Massachusetts and Bunker Hill. According to present plans the service will begin operations the first week in January, probably the first Monday.

Boats will leave Central wharf, Boston, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 5 p. m., and the sailing days from piers 9, 10 and 11, North River, New York, will be Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at the same hour as the boats leave Boston.

SAYS HE LOST HIS JOB BECAUSE SON REFUSED TO HANDLE TRUST OIL

W. E. Barney, who declares he was discharged by the Oil Trust because son sold for independent dealer.

WORCESTER, Nov. 21.—Claiming that he was discharged from his position as engineer for Brewer & Co., local agents for the Standard Oil Trust, because his son, who is working his way through Tufts Medical School, sold an independent oil company's oils, W. E. Barney of No. 26 Glen street has sought legal advice in hopes of fighting the trust's agents.

Barney, who was formerly a State president of the Stationary Engineers' Union, is known all over New England. When the trust's local agents built a new building he was given charge of the electrical and engineer work in the building.

His son obtained the agency in Boston for the Pratt & Washburn Independent Oil Company's goods in New England.

Father's Story of Demand.

With the commission he obtained from selling oils and packings the young man was putting himself through Tufts Medical College.

Mr. Barney's story is as follows:

"When the Brewer Company found that my son was selling goods in Worcester I was called to the office and told that unless I would prohibit him from competing with their goods, the Standard Oil Company's line, I would be discharged.

"I agree I lost my temper. I knew I would have no show with this rich concern, but I determined to starve before I would withdraw my boy from school and blight his life's ambition. I pleaded with Mr. Brewer, and was finally allowed time to consider the question.

Oil Trust Goods Refused.

"I told the company I would not tell my son, but suggested they write him a business letter. This they refused to do.

"My son continued to sell oil in Worcester, and the goods of the Standard people were sent back by Worcester merchants, as they liked my son's line better.

"Now I am discharged. I told Mr. Brewer if he would pay my boy $1,500, the cost of his coming two years' tuition in college, I was sure he would stop, as it was only the boy's great desire to put himself through school that prompted him to take the position with Pratt-Washburn.

"I know my duties were with my employer, and I have always tried to be honest with them. I have not at any time helped my son to sell his oils, thinking he was capable of taking care of himself."

Howard Brewer, speaking for his father, denied Mr. Barney was discharged because his son did not sell trust oil, claiming that for months past his father had been looking for a reason to get rid of Barney.

"We are prepared to fight any legal action Mr. Barney enters against us," Mr. Brewer said. "The man, instead of helping us, as he should, being in our employ, would go to our customers and tell them our oils were not good. This, of course, was not right and helped the son's business and hurt ours. In many ways Mr. Barney gave away our business secrets."

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

To-night the Malden Rubber Workers will meet in the Central Labor Union, Bailey's Block, Pleasant street, Malden. Secretary M. E. Kelly requests that all the workers attend.

The National Alliance of Bill Posters and Billers of America, affiliated with the A. F. of L., will hold its annual convention on Monday, December 2, in Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill. Forty of the largest cities in the United States will be represented. The Alliance is in excellent condition, according to National Secretary William J. Murray, and expects no trouble in having their circus agreement for the season of 1908 signed by the various circuses. Francis M. Lloyd of Cambridge is the national president.

The city employes and Hebrew painters of Chelsea will be organized, and the Chelsea C. L. U. holds a special meeting to-night for the purpose of getting the men together.

Carpenters' District Council will meet to-night at No. 30 Hanover street, and the meeting will be of special importance. All delegates have been ordered to attend.

Raymond Robins of Chicago speaks to-night in Social Hall, Tremont Temple, on the relation of the labor problem to the land question. The meeting is free to the public and members of organized labor are asked to attend.

Mr. Robins spoke to-day at 12 noon in Paine Memorial Hall to the striking bookbinders.

At a meeting held in Teamsters' Hall No. 14 Broadway extension, a number of laborers employed by the Atlas Construction Company on their Deer Island work, were admitted by Building Laborers No. 223, which is affiliated with the Building Trades Section of the Boston C. L. U. International Organizer Dominick D'Alessandro and Cornelius P. Shea, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters No. 191, spoke.

R. S. Jones of Franklin street have signed the eight-hour workday agreement of the bookbinders, and the men have returned. There are now only five shops on strike in Boston, and two in Norwood, according to the strike committee.

A committee has been elected by Bridge and Draw Tenders Union to wait upon Mayor Fitzgerald and Superintendent McDonald of the bridge department in regard to the petition presented by the draw tenders last February, in which an increase of wages was requested.

As a result of the meeting between the organizing committee of the Building Trades Section of the Boston C. L. U. and delegates from those crafts not already affiliated with the section, it was agreed that it was for the best interests of all the crafts that all get together in one body. All delegates will report back to their respective locals, and, although no formal vote or recommendation of action was taken, it was agreed to meet again November 30 to take further steps in the matter.

James A. Gorman, secretary of the Federation of State, City and Town Employes' Unions, reports that a meeting to perfect the organization of the Medford city men will be held next Sunday afternoon. Next Monday the city men of Fall River will meet in Spinners' Hall to organize. President Thomas Taylor of the Fall River C. L. U. will preside, and National President O'Brien, National Secretary Gorman and Jeremiah Herlihy of the Newton City Men's Union will speak.

The machinists at the Watertown Arsenal have prepared a report and recommendation which will be presented to the general meeting of Machinists' No. 264 in Wells Memorial to-night.

MONTH'S TREATMENT FREE

Including All Medicine, Given to All Patients Applying at the Offices of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians, 18 Boylston Street, on or before Nov. 30th. There Will Be No Charge for Consultation, or the Most Careful Examination With the X-Ray. ONLY 9 DAYS REMAIN.

The alterations, improvements and installation of new apparatus that was found absolutely necessary to care for the constantly increasing practice of the Osmo-Chemic physicians is at last completed, and these great scientists are now better than ever able to give that careful, courteous and skilful attention to each individual patient that has brought the Osmo-Chemic practice to such a high state of efficiency and enabled these physicians to perform so many marvellous cures.

The new apparatus for the cure of Catarrh, Deafness, Bronchitis, Consumption and all diseases of the air passages is far in advance of anything used in New England or the east.

The Osmo-Chemic physicians extend a hearty invitation to the medical fraternity to come and learn what science has developed in the treatment of chronic diseases.

THE OSMO-CHEMIC X-LIGHT used to find disease, making a diagnosis easy, and a cure certain. All the sick who begin treatment at the office of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians on or before Nov. 30th are entitled to this perfect examination and a month's treatment without a penny to pay.

Old patients and new patients are welcome to take advantage of the liberal offer of a month's treatment free during the remaining days of November. However, the Osmo-Chemic physicians desire to emphasize the fact that although their facilities have been greatly enlarged with the introduction of this new apparatus and more space, there must be a limit to all things, and at the present rate of increase in their practice it will be but a short time before even these increased facilities will be taxed to their utmost. They therefore urge those who contemplate availing themselves of this great opportunity to do so at once, as the Osmo-Chemic physicians insist upon limiting the number of their patients to those they can give every attention and courtesy, that will bring about a cure in the shortest possible time.

THIS IS THE OFFER

All patients, no matter what their disease, who begin treatment at the offices of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians on or before Nov. 30 will receive one month's treatment, including all necessary medicine, absolutely free. ONLY 9 DAYS REMAIN.

CURED PATIENTS

Are the Best Advertisement of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians. What They Have Done for Others They Can Do for You.

CITY OF BOSTON.

To the Licensed Coal Dealers of the City of Boston.

SEALING OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES DEPARTMENT—Office, basement of Old Court House, Court square.—Every licensed dealer in Coal must comply with the provisions of the following statute: An act relative to the sale of coal in small quantities. Be it enacted, etc., as follows: Section 1. Chapter 57 of the Revised Laws is hereby amended by striking out Section 84 and inserting in place thereof the following:—Section 84. Coal shall be sold by weight, and, except when sold by cargo, 2,000 pounds avoirdupois shall be the standard for the ton. Coal, in quantities of less than 100 pounds, shall be sold in bags or baskets, and shall be kept until delivered in the same bags or baskets in which the goods are weighed, and coal thus sold shall be exempt from the provisions of Section 88 of this chapter. Such bags or baskets shall be plainly marked with the name of the person who puts up the same and the weight of the coal therein with words in solid Roman capital letters at least one inch in height. Section 2. Section 85 of Chapter 57 of the Revised Laws is hereby repealed. [Approved March 20, 1907.] The penalty for failure to comply with this statute is a fine of not more than $50 for each offence. THOMAS A. MULLEN, Acting Sealer of Weights and Measures.

SITANIA ON RECORD TIME

EENSTOWN, Nov. 21.—The Cunard steamship Lusitania, which left New Nov. 16, passing Sandy Hook lightabout 4:38 p. m., was 175 miles west Fastnet at 10:35 a. m. to-day. The Lusshould arrive at Queenstown about 8 evening, making the time of her pasabout 4 days 22 hours and 23 min. In this case she would beat her vious eastward record by about thirty utes.

LITTLE CHANGES IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The stock market, with the exception of a decline of ¾ in Baltimore & Ohio, showed opening changes mainly of slight fractions. Copper opened ¼ higher; Reading ⅛ higher and gained in all ½. Steel preferred opened unchanged and advanced ⅛. Steel common started ¼ higher and gained in all ½. Southern Pacific gained ⅛. St. Paul and Great Northern preferred opened ⅛ lower. American Locomotive lost 1 per cent. and Union Pacific ⅛. At the end of ten minutes' trading the market continued narrow and uncertain.

TELEPHONE GIRLS TO JOIN IN DANC

Catholic Union Hall, Washington and Worcester streets, will be the scene of one of the most enjoyable socials of the season to-morrow night, when the pretty girls of the Haymarket telephone station will put aside the switchboard and receiver and devote themselves exclusively to the light fantastic until long after midnight. The girls have been making great preparations for this event. Miss Alice Whelton and Miss Ethel G. Jones are among the officers of the club who have put in considerable time in arranging the details.

MAURETANIA LOSES TIM

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—According to wireless dispatches received at the Cunard offices the Mauretania is off the Nova Scotia coast and rapidly nearing Sable Island. Bad weather and the inability of the stokers to get up sufficient steam have delayed the vessel. Captain Pritchard estimates he lost seventeen miles by being obliged to slow down in order to secure the lashing of a spar and anchor on the forward deck. The runs of the vessel include Monday, 571 knots, Tuesday 461 knots and yesterday 563 knots. The boat is less than a thousand miles east of the Sandy Hook lightship.

POSTAL EMPLOYES CHEER HIBBARD AT RALLIES

CONSPICUOUS IN THE DEMONSTRATIONS FOR LODGE MAYORALTY CANDIDATE.

Postmaster George A. Hibbard campaigned through eight wards in Boston last night with a band of hired men. The hired men are postal department employes and their mission was to swell the numbers at Hibbard meetings and inject a little enthusiasm into the proceedings. There is nothing in the regulations of the postal department of the United States government which requires this action, but trailing and shouting for Hibbard helps keep the men who do it in good standing.

When Hibbard began his handshaking tours there were enough letter carriers wherever he appeared to attract attention. So the word was whispered that thereafter they should appear in civilian clothes. But so far they have not been able to put much spontaneity into their applause. The program they followed is to make a demonstration when Hibbard appears in a hall or ward room and then to hustle to the street and cheer as he departs. Neither the State management nor the government supernumeraries have got to the stage of working in absolute precision as yet.

Frostty in Ward 17.

There was no outpouring of the populace last night to greet the Lodge candidate last night. At Ward 19 meeting there were about 35 men present. The postal employes were not so conspicuous there as in several other places. They had been told to "keep under cover." Considering the numbers present, Hibbard got a good reception.

In Ward 21 there was a little real enthusiasm shown. He was cheerd on his entrance and at his departure. There were about fifty men present. The instructions to postal department men at this meeting were to "keep shy."

In Ward 17 Hibbard's reception was frosty. He had to explain why he was there. One letter carrier kept modestly in the background, although not in uniform, and those not in government service remarked the fact that there were several other postal men in the throng.

Webster Leads Cheers.

At the Roxbury Crossing gathering the crowd did not number much more than a score. The five or six acrriers or postal clerks present were dressed like ordinary citizens. The atmosphere was depressing.

At Comforde Hall in Jamaica Plain, Hibbard got a hearty greeting. It was said that there were a dozen or more postal men present out of a total of about 100. When Postmaster Hibbard entered, Walter A. Webster, a Fitzgerald Republican and an "also ran," against Moran, called for "three cheers for the next Mayor!" They were heartily given. A man who is said to be the chief clerk at the Jamaica Plain post office greeted Hibbard as "boss" when they shook. Chairman George W. Lorey tipped the crowd to chase Hizzard to the sidewalk. He got a rousing cheer when he climbed into his automobile.

Postal Clerk Chairman.

At the meeting in the poplar street headquarters in Roslindale a man was introduced to Hibbard by N. S. Tretheway, ward committee chairman, as a letter carrier, but he told a BOSTON AMEHRICAN reporter that he was not a carrier but a postoffice clerk. He said that five or six other postoffice employes were present.

The biggest demonstration for Hibbard was at the Ward 10 headquarters, No. 329 Columbus avenue. Both red fires and cheers greeted Hibbard and the crowd was estimated at 150. Former Senator Charles H. Innes presided. There were a few postal employes in the crowd, it was said the postmaster was folled to the street and there was a great deal of noise to signalize his departure.

At each meeting Hibbard made a polite excuse for his being a candidate—not stating that he was the man most favored for the nomination by Boss Lodge. He shook every hand offered him.

NEW SUIT ADDS TO ROMANCE OF RICH MERCHANT

Mrs. Thomas M. Cleary of Holyoke Now Asks Separation and Alimony.

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 21.—The incidents of a romance which sprung up thirteen months ago between Thomas M. Cleary, wealthy liquor merchant of Holyoke, and Miss Lucy Warren of the same city have been truly remarkable, for in that time a breach of promise suit has been brought and settled, a fashionable marriage has taken place, to be followed a few months later by a separation and suit for limited divorce and alimony.

Mrs. Cleary, who is but twenty-one years of age, charges that her husband, who is fifty-five, has mistreated her. The action has been brought in the Probate Court here before Judge Long. The trial of the suit promises to be more than usually interesting because of the prominence of the parties involved.

The attachment between Cleary and Miss Warren began when the girl was but sixteen years of age. The man was deep in love with the pretty girl, and it is said even followed her to New York at one time and hunted the metropolis over for her until he found her. It is declared that he won her promise of marriage in Broadway, and that she accepted him there.

A year ago last August a $25,000 breach of promise suit was begun against Cleary by Miss Warren, and it was suddenly withdrawn. Then a marriage which was made much of as a social event followed. The pretty bride was installed in Cleary's big Holyoke mansion, and there they were thought to be happy until this Fall when the young woman left and took up residence again with her mother.

Her suit for separation and alimony was then filed which, it is said, Cleary will fight with vigor.

SHIP RIFLES TO PACIFIC

Special to the Boston American.

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 21.—The first shipment of 2,000 rifles in the new lot ordered for the Philippines has just been sent from the government arsenal here. They were sent to San Francisco, whence they will be transhipped to Manila.

The total order calls for 16,000 rifles. Shipment will be delayed on accounts of the protest made by a woman in the watershop district, who complained to the ordnance bureau that he noise of testing the rifle sights at night kept her awake. On this account an order was received from Washington discontinuing night testing at the watershop range.

WOMAN FASTS 21 DAYS FOR HEALTH

PAWTUXET, R. I., Nov. 21.—After fasting twenty-one days as part of a medical treatment, Mrs. Herbert F. Gardner, who lives just on Fair street, has eaten an oyster stew, and is now taking some solid food. She has been suffering from a nervous ailment and has taken gradually lengthening fasts on the advice of a prominent specialist. The fast just ended was the third of the series. The others were from three days to a week in length. Though the patient has apparently been helped by the fasts, she has been made very weak, and for the past month has been able to do practically no work about the house. About a week since she took to her bed. She has lost greatly in weight.

600 OFFICERS NEEDED IN ARMY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—In order to relieve, as much as possible, the present shortage of almost 600 officers in the army it has been decided by the War Department that the present first year class of cadets at West Point Military Academy shall be graduated early in February, or about four months ahead of the regular time.

5 CHILDREN PERISH IN FIRE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

TITUSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 21.—Five children, ranging from five to twelve years, were burned to death near here to-day in their home.

Thomas Zuver and wife, the parents, escaped, together with two older children, from an upstairs window. One of the children escaping, a boy of seventeen, was perhaps fatally burned. His ears were almost burned off, while his hair was singed.

CHAUFFEUR IN $5,000 BONDS

John Quinlan of No. 78 Tremont street, Brighton, chauffeur of Charles M. Boyd's automobile, which ran over and killed Mrs. A. W. Green of Webster avenue, Allston, in Oak square yesterday afternoon, was held in $5,000 bonds in Brighton District Court to-day for continued hearing on Saturday, November 30. Quinlan, who appeared much downcast, pleaded not guilty to the charge of manslaughter. Bail was furnished for him by Mr. Boyd, his employer.

If it's at Morse's, it's correct.
If it's correct, it's at Morse's.

At the beginning of the season we produced a limited number of extremely high grade overcoats. They marked the highest advance attained thus far in the construction of ready-made clothing.

We priced them at $50 and $45—very low figures for the rich quality of the fabrics and the character of the tailoring.

We believed they would interest men who had hitherto deemed it impossible to have their critical demands satisfied anywhere except at the very finest tailors, who were quite within the bounds of fairness when they asked $60 or more for similar garments.

That our judgment was right is proved by the present condition of these two lines—the overcoats that remain comprise a broken assortment of sizes. As we do not intend to add to these lines this season we wish to dispose of the remaining overcoats as quickly as possible.

We therefore offer them at a reduction of 20%. In other words,

THOUSANDS OF COULTHURST BUTTONS OUT

Call From All Classes Indicates Surprising Strength of League Candidate.

GIVEN FREE TO ALL VOTERS

The thousands of applications received at the Independence League headquarters for Coulthurst buttons indicate a remarkably strong sentiment in favor of the former Representative's candidacy for Mayor.

Several thousand of these handsome campaign buttons, bearing an excellent likeness of Mr. Coulthurst, were received by the City Committee at No. 348 Old South building on Tuesday, and by night every one was gone. A second consignment as quickly disappeared yesterday, and to-day there is a big run to secure the third lot.

Surprising Demand.

One of the surprising features of this demand for the button is in the different classes of people who call for them. Employers of large numbers of men send in, saying that their employes wish to wear them. Janitors in large office buildings come for from 25 to 100 buttons, stating that the tenants of their buildings want them.

Messenger boys are sent in from all over the city and letters are received by scores, asking from one to a dozen buttons.

"I want one to wear myself, and there are three others in my family who want them," shows the tenor of these letters.

The League officials will provide enough to supply all voters who desire them, and they may be had by calling at No. 348 Old South Building, though it is hard to keep pace with the demand.

Call for Sets of 100.

Men come in from the express and railroad offices, printing establishments and large mercantile establishments, saying: "There are a hundred of us down here who want Coulthurst buttons. Can you let me have 100?"

This demand for the campaign buttons well illustrates the enthusiasm shown for Mr. Coulthurst's candidacy, which is bound to be further proved by the thousands of votes the people's candidate for Mayor will receive at the polls on election day.

THREE HURT BY EXPLOSION.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Three men were badly burned, two perhaps fatally, to-day, by an explosion of a pot of chemicals in the Nichols Chemical Works in the Laurel Hill section of Long Island.

HARD-EARNED MONEY TO AID COULTHURST

Wage-Workers Give Small Earnings to League Candidate's Fund.

PROGRESS ENCOURAGING

The John A. Coulthurst campaign contribution fund is steadily growing, with a rate of progress which is very encouraging, especially in consideration of the fact that most of the contributions are the hard earned gifts of wage-workers, whose means are limited.

Yesterday there was received at the Independence League headquarters, No. 348 Old South Building, contributions to the amount of $11.50. This makes a total of $48.50 for the fund to date.

50 Cents from Firemen.

Last night there was a knock at the door of the League headquarters. The clerk who answered the door beheld a working man, clad in oil-stained overalls and bearing a lantern in one hand. The man pulled a pay envelope from his pocket. It contained a ten-dollar bill and a two-dollar bill.

"I just got my pay envelope to-day," said the stranger; "take out fifty cents from this two-dollar bill and give me the change. Fifty cents is all I can afford to give, but I want to contribute that to the Coulthurst fund. I am employed as night fireman in an office building near here. I get only a few minutes away from my work, so I can't stop long. I ask you not to use my name in this, as I get my rent free for acting as janitor in an apartment house daytimes."

Receiving his change from the two-dollar bill the contributor departed.

$2,000 FOR WORCESTER BOYS TO BUILD HOME

WORCESTER, Nov. 21.—The Worcester Boys Club has been presented with $1,000 by Mrs. Mary S. Rogers, of No. 28 High street, as a memorial to her husband. A Worcester citizen who refuses to tell his name has also given the school $1,000. The money will be used in building a clubhouse, now under construction.

A Chance to Help in Fight Against Graft

The Boston City Committee of the Independence League has issued the following appeal for funds:

Boston citizens who really believe in the election of a Mayor this year who will turn out grafters and who will run the government of the municipality on an honest basis have an opportunity to measure the depth of their sincerity in a cash contribution to the campaign fund of John A. Coulthurst.

This is a poor man's campaign against men who have become rich in public service. Against Mr. Coulthurst will be thrown the force of thousands of political promises in conjunction with the expenditure of unlimited money. The Independence League and Mr. Coulthurst are practically without financial resources.

So expensive have campaigns become in this city that a poor man such as Mr. Coulthurst is, is practically barred from making a race for the mayoralty. Certain expenses are actually necessary, and it is no more than right that citizens who want an honest man in the City Hall should help to bring about his election.

Money expended in this way would be money well invested. The elevation of such a man as John A. Coulthurst to the head of the city government would appeal both to the financial and moral sense of the people of the city.

Any one who wishes to make a contribution, large or small, should hand it or send it to A. L. Leeman, treasurer of the Boston City Committee of the Independence League, Room No. 348 Old South Building, No. [illegible] Washington street, Boston.

Receipts of contributions will be acknowledged each day in the BOSTON AMERICAN.

Any contributor may be assured that the money will be wisely used for perfectly legitimate expenses of the campaign.

Independence League City Committee,
ROBERT T. ALLEN, Chairman.
JOHN M. PEASE, Secretary.

WRECK HOUSE TO FREEZE OUT POOR TENANTS

Husband, Wife and Five Little Ones Found by Neighbors Nearly Starved to Death.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 21.—Without food for nearly a week and no fire, with every window of the house taken out and all the chimneys stuffed at the top, Charles Collins, his wife and their five small children have been trying to keep alive in an old dwelling at Hutchins Corner at Kittery Point, Me.

Moses Randall, the landlord, had appealed for his rent money, but Collins was unable to pay it, and Randall, it is said, took this method to drive the destitute family from the place they called their home.

They could get no other place and were compelled to sleep exposed to the cold winds from the harbor until exposure and hunger made death itself seem almost a welcome visitor.

The neighbors finally reported the affair to the town authorities, and they ordered Chief of Police Philbrick to investigate. The big officer visited the home to-day and the sight brought the tears to his eyes.

By order of the selectmen of the town of Kittery the family received medical attendance and were later removed to the town farm in that village.

HELD FOR GEM THEFT.

Frank Hackett, forty-one, of No. 66 Green street, is under arrest, charged with the larceny of a gold watch, a pair of earrings and a single earring, the property of Elizabeth O'Brien of No. 387 Charles street.

OPEN BOYLSTON STREET AFTER TARDY REPAIRS

Work on Bridge Rushed After Series of Protests by Public.

Street cars are running over Boylston street bridge to-day for the first time in many weeks and the street is finally opened to traffic. The long-delayed repairs have been completed after the BOSTON AMERICAN had repeatedly called the attention of the city authorities to the outrage which was being foisted upon the public by the tardiness of the Boston Elevated Railroad Company.

The closing of the Boylston street bridge by the Elevated and the diverting of traffic by way of Huntington and Massachusetts avenues raised a storm of protest at the time it was inaugurated. Merchants protested to the company in vain, but the convenience of the traveling public was ignored and the Elevated continued to adjust matters in its own way.

After repeated protests by the AMERICAN night gangs were put at work, and last night the bridge was opened for travel, once more.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLER HEL

On the charge of embezzling $800 fr different persons in Newell, W. Va., Winters, alias John Duffy, eighteen, May street, East Liverpool, O., is held the police, awaiting officers of Newe who will ask for requisition papers.

SEARCHED BY POLICEMAN, SAY PUPILS

Parents of children attending the fourth grade of the Cradock Grammar School in Medford are indignant over the charge made by the children that Miss Della Joslin, their teacher, had several of them searched by a policeman to find a five-cent piece the teacher said was taken from her desk.

Only the children's side of the story has been heard so far but the parents are talking of taking up the matter to the authorities or the city officials and demanding an investigation.

The story goes to the effect that yesterday afternoon Miss Joslin, who has forty children under her charge, missed a nickel, which she declared had been on her desk. The children were asked about it, but none admitted knowing anything about it. A policeman was called in, the children say. The policemen proceeded to search several of the pupils, despite their protests. The search included their coats and jackets, blouses and even shoes and rubbers in some cases. However, the missing nickel was not located.

After school the children hastened to tell their grievance at home, with the result that angry parents are demanding an explanation for what they deem arbitrary and unjustifiable conduct toward public school pupils.

EASY FOR EAST BOSTON.

In their first game of the season, the East Bostons defeated the Lakesides of Southbridge by the score of 79 to 27 at Lyceum Hall.

Don't Be Deceived; Woman's 'No' May Really Mean 'Yes'

By Beatrice Fairfax

"And whispering 'I'll ne'er consent'—consented." —Byron.

DON'T think, young man, that just because she says "no" your case is hopeless.

Like the famous spider of King Robert Bruce legend, try, try again.

She may love you very truly and yet not be able to bring herself to the acceptance point.

A girl's heart is a very delicate piece of mechanism. It may reach out to you with every fibre and yet shut itself up like a sensitive plant if you come too close.

It is much better that a girl should take her time in making up her mind. She may know in her heart what her final answer is going to be, but if she is wise she will not give it too quickly.

If marriage were a thing of little while it would be different, but it is the most important step of a girl's life and should not be treated as lightly as the buying of a new hat or the paying of a visit.

Easy to Fall Out

SOMETIMES an impulsive young man will propose to a girl whom he has not met more than half a dozen times.

If the girl happens to be equally scatter-brained and accepts him, the chances are that they will fall out of love as easily as they fell in.

If, however, a man falls in love with a girl, waits a reasonable length of time, proposes and is refused, I see no reason why he should be utterly downcast.

The best thing to do is wait a while longer and then try again.

The girl thus has a chance to study her own mind and to decide how she really does feel in the matter.

Girls do not get the credit of being shy over proposals, and yet many of them are extremely so.

Sheer nervousness will cause a girl to continually prevent a man from proposing, though she knows quite well that she means to accept him when he does.

Sometimes she says "no" when all the time she means "yes," but she cannot bring herself to say the word which signifies her betrothal.

Every girl dreams of the day when she shall become engaged. Unconsciously she forms an ideal, and all her happy fancies are woven about him.

When the right man comes he probably does not in the least resemble her ideal, but she finally sets him on the pedestal the ideal was wont to occupy and all goes well.

This, however, takes time, and in the meantime the right young man may be going through the agonies of blighted affection.

He is jealous of every man who looks at her. He is unhappy when he is with her, and miserable when he is not.

He smokes a great deal more than is good for his health and makes savage epigrams at woman's expense. Altogether is he a very sore, discouraged young man?

Avoid the Hasty "Yes"

AND all the while the object of his adoration means to accept him, but feels that she must be quite sure of herself before she takes such an important step.

It is much better to take your time over your decision than to say "yes" and later find that you have made a mistake.

Some girls look on engagements merely as amusements, to be made and broken as lightly as thistledown.

The promise to marry is second in solemnity only to the marriage vow itself.

It means that two people are willing to devote their lives to each other; are prepared to make the vow to live together in joy or in sorrow as long as they shall live.

So don't blame your sweetheart if she takes a long time in making up her mind, young man. And don't feel that her "no" is final. Give her time, and then try again. You may win the second time, though you failed the first.

"THE TURN OF THE BALANCE"

BY BRAND WHITLOCK

CHAPTER IX.—Continued

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

"I THINK it's good we came, eh, Eades?" the clergyman went on, without waiting for an answer. "It is not good for you to be too serious, Miss Elizabeth—my pastoral calls are meant as much as anything to take people out of themselves." He smiled again in his abundant self-satisfaction and reclined comfortably in his chair with a smile to show Elizabeth how he regarded duties that in all propriety must not be considered too seriously or too sincerely. But Elizabeth did not smile. She met his eyes calmly.

Serious

"Dear me," he said, mocking her gravity, "it must have been serious."

"It was," said Elizabeth, soberly. "It was—the murder!"

"The murder! Shocking!" said Modderwell. "I've read something about it. The newspapers say the identification of Koerner by the poor old woman was complete and positive; they say the shock was such that she fainted, and that he stood there all the time and sneered. I hope, Eades, you will see that the wretch gets his deserts promptly, and send him to the gallows, where he belongs!"

"Marriott here doesn't join you in that wish, I know," said Eades.

"No? Why not?" asked Modderwell. "Surely he ——"

"He's going to defend the murderer." Eades spoke in a tone that had a sting for Marriott.

"Oh!" said Modderwell rather coldly. "I don't see how you can do such a thing, Marriott. For your own sake, as much as anybody's, I'm sorry I can't wish you success.'

"I wish he hadn't undertaken the task," said Eades.

"I'm sure it must be most disagreeable," said Mrs. Ward, feeling that she must say something.

"Why do you wish it?" said Marriott, suddenly turning almost savagely on Eades.

"Why," said Eades, elevating his brows in a superior way, "I don't like to see you in such work. A criminal practice is the disreputable part of the profession."

"But you have a criminal practice."

Bitterness

"Oh, but on the other side," said Modderwell. "And we all expect so much better things of Mr. Marriott."

"Oh, don't trouble yourselves about me!" said Marriott. "I'm sure I prefer my side of the case to Eades's."

The atmosphere was surcharged with bitterness. Mrs. Ward gave a sidelong glance of pain, deprecating such a contretemps.

"And I'm going to try to save him," Marriott was forging on.

"Well," said Eades, looking down on his large oval polished nails, and speaking in a tone that would finally dispose of the problem, "for my part, I revere the law and I want to see it enforced."

"Exactly!" Modderwell agreed. "And if there were fewer delays in bringing these criminals to justice there would be fewer lynchings and more respect for the law."

Marriott did not even try to conceal the disgust with which he received this hackneyed and conventional formula of thoughtless respectability. He felt that it was useless to argue with Eades or Modderwell; it seemed to him that they had never thought seriously of such questions, and would not do so, but that they were merely echoing speeches they had heard all their lives, inherited speeches that had been in vogue for generations, ages, one might say.

"Impertinence"

"I am sure it must be a most disagreeable task," Mrs. Ward was saying, looking at her daughter in the hope that Elizabeth might relieve a situation with which she felt herself powerless to deal. Marriott seemed always to be introducing such topics, and she had the distaste of her class for the real vital questions of life. But Elizabeth was speaking.

"I'm sure that Gordon's task isn't more disagreeable than mine."

"Yours?" Mrs. Ward turned toward her daughter, dreading things even worse now.

"Yes," replied Elizabeth, looking about in pleasure at the surprise she had created.

"Why, what problem have you?" asked Modderwell.

"I've been sent for—to come to the prison to see——"

"Not him!" said Modderwell.

Eades started suddenly forward.

"No," said Elizabeth calmly, enjoying the situation, "his sister."

"His sister!"

"Yes," she turned to her mother. "You know, dear; Gusta. She's been arrested."

"Oh!" exclaimed Mrs. Ward. "Elizabeth! The idea! What impertinence! Who could have brought such an insolent message!" She looked at Marriott, as did the others.

"I cannot consent to your going at all, so let that end it."

"But, Mr. Modderwell," said Elizabeth, with a smile for her mother, "we pray don't we, every Sunday for 'pity upon all prisoners and captives'?"

"That's entirely different," said Modderwell.

"What does it mean—'I was in prison and ye visited me'?" She sat with her hands folded in humility, as if seeking wisdom and instruction.

"That was in another day," said Modderwell. "Society was not organized then as it is now; it was—all different, of course." Modderwell went on groping for justification. "If these people are repentant—are seeking to turn from their wickedness, the Church has appointed the clergy to visit them and give them instruction."

"Publicity!"

"Then perhaps you'd better go!" Elizabeth's eyes sparkled, and she looked at Modderwell, who feared a joke or a trap; then at Eades, who was almost as deeply distressed as Mrs. Ward, and then at Marriott, whose eyes showed the relish with which he enjoyed the situation.

"I don't think she wishes to see me," said Modderwell, with a significance that did not have a tribute for Gusta. No one disputed him, and there was silence, in which Eades looked intently at Elizabeth, and then, just as he seemed on the point of speaking to her, he turned to Marriott and said:

"You certainly don't think that a proper place for her to go?"

"Oh," said Marriott, "don't refer to me; I'm out of it. I've been, I brought the message—it's—it's up to Elizabeth."

"Well," said Eades, turning to Elizabeth, "you surely can't be seriously considering such a thing. You don't know, of course, what kind of a place that is, or what kind of people you would be going among, or what risks you would be exposing yourself to."

"There would be no danger, would there?" said Elizabeth, in her most innocent manner. "There would be plenty of policemen at hand, wouldn't there—in case of need?"

Decision

"Well, I don't think you'd willingly elect to go among policemen," said Eades.

"Perhaps you three would go with me?" suggested Elizabeth. "I'd be safe then—all I'd lack would be a physician to make my escort completely representative of the learned professions."

"The newspaper men would be there," said Eades, "you may be sure of that, and the publicity——"

At the word "publicity" Mrs. Ward cringed with genuine alarm.

"Do you find publicity so annoying?" asked Elizabeth, smiling on the three men.

"Elizabeth!" said Mrs. Ward, "I do wish you'd stop this nonsense! It may seem very amusing to you, but I assure you it is not amusing to me; I find it very distressing." She looked her distress, and then turned away in the disgust that was a part of her distress. "It would be shocking!" she said, when she seemed to them all to have had her say.

"I'm sorry to shock you all," said Elizabeth, meekly. "It's very kind of you, I'm sure, to act as mentors and censors of my conduct. I feel sufficiently put down; you have helped me to a decision. I have decided, after hearing your arguments, and out of deference to your sentiments and opinions, to——"

They all looked up expectantly.

"——to go," she concluded.

She smiled on them all with serenity, and they looked at her with that blank helplessness that came over them whenever they tried to understand her.

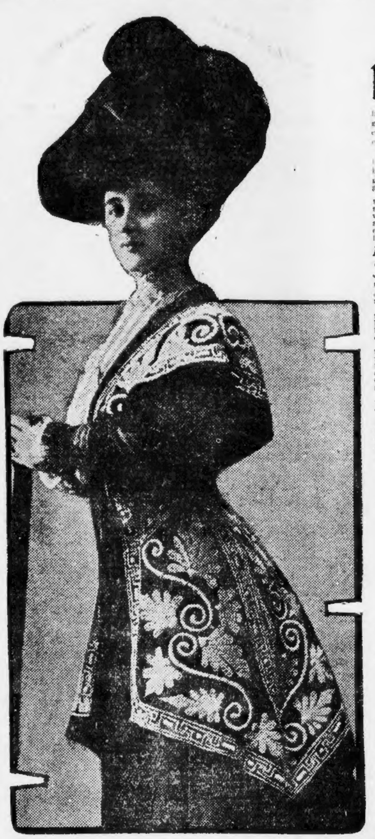
FOR BRIDAL GOWN

THERE may be a cynical note in the congratulations offered to the society bride in these days of quick divorces, but her gowns cause unrestrained enthusiasm. A touch of silver is the "correct thing" on a wedding gown just now, and French frocks are made with heavy embroidery in white silk upon silver net. Silver discreetly used is seen in the Fall models, and since in the majority of cases the silver is of dull gray instead of lustrous, it is not too spectacular for conservative tastes.

NO LIMIT TO USE OF BRAID THIS SEASON



THE craze for braid and raised embroidery is running riot as the season advances and designers of fashions are beginning to wonder where the fad will end. The accompanying photograph shows the hitherto unknown extent to which embroidery is employed. It is one of the newest models of a famous Paris designer. The long coat of chiffon velvet is embroidered almost all over in raised motifs of gray and silver. The black cloth skirt worn with this coat is edged with embroidery in the Greek key pattern.

Why Should Elderly Women Be Jealous

OLDER people, older women particularly, have a way of making young people, and conspicuously the members of their own sex, feel small and ill at ease.

In fact, they treat them sometimes almost as though they were in the criminal class, or at least of a very questionable character. Whatever prompts them to act as they do may not be laid to any one motive.

Several motives stir them, though probably the most common one is jealousy. Jealousy of the youth, the freshness and the enthusiasm of the young people growing up beside them, whom their own experiences in life should influence them to encourage instead of dishearten.

All of us have been shocked and made angry many times at the ease with which older women speak the word which means the utter loss of reputation for a younger woman.

Somehow they seem to have more consideration for women of their own years and older, but a younger woman, especially if she be prepossessing and successful in a line of work in which they are more or less interested, need expect no mercy from them, for she will get none if there is a thread by which they may hang her.

Older women, through worldly wisdom gained through years, could be veritable guide-posts to the future happiness and success of young people if they would but take the right means.

CREAM PUFFS

One cup hot water, one-half cup butter, boil together and while boiling stir in one cup of sifted dry flour. Take from the stove and stir to a paste and after this cools stir in three eggs not beaten, stir five minutes. Drop in tablespoonful on a buttered tin and bake in a quick oven twenty-five minutes, being careful not to open the oven door oftener than it is necessary. Do not let them touch each other in the pan.

CREAM FOR PUFFS.

One cup milk, one-half cup sugar, one egg, three tablespoons flour, flavor. Make in a double boiler the same as any cream. When puffs and cream are cool open the puffs and fill with cream. They are very nice.

MRS. FRANCIS R. HAYDN.
No. 12 Lauriston street, Providence.

BANANA FRITTERS

Mix and sift one cup flour, one tablespoon sugar, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon baking powder. Beat one egg in one-half cup milk and combine. Add three bananas sliced and fry in deep fat and serve with lemon sauce.

LEMON SAUCE.

One-half cup sugar, one tablespoon cornstarch (mix); add one cup hot water and boil five minutes. Remove from fire and add one and one-half teaspoons lemon juice and two tablespoons butter with a few gratings of nutmeg.

MRS. A. L. WHITNEY.
No. 36 Cottage Park road, Winthrop.

PLUM PUDDING

One loaf of stale bread, grated, the crusts soaked and squeezed out, one-half pound suet ground, one-half pound currants, one-half pound raisins, one-fourth pound citron, three-quarter pound brown sugar, one-half cup molasses, three eggs. Add a little allspice and a little brandy if you wish. Mix with the hand and boil in a five-pound lard pail five hours. This will last for months.

LEMON SAUCE

Two cups of water, butter size of an egg, cup of sugar, pinch of salt, grated rind of a lemon. Thicken with a little cornstarch previously dissolved in water. This pudding is delicious.

MRS. J. ALBERT JOHNSON.
No. 17 Cliff street, Maplewood.

CHOCOLATE CAKE

Cream one-fourth cup of butter, add slowly one and one-half cups of sugar, cream thoroughly; add one egg, unbeaten, two-thirds cup of milk and two cups of bread flour mixed with three scant teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Melt two square of chocolate, add three tablespoonfuls of sugar and one-third cup of milk; cook until smooth, cool and add to the cake mixture. Beat well and bake in a moderate oven in layers or in a brick loaf pan. Frost.

What Is Success? Is It Manhood or Money or Character?

By Rev. Thomas B. Gregory.

BROADLY defined, success is the attainment of one's aim. To plan, and to carry the plan out, is to succeed.

In this sense the murderer, the incendiary, the thief, the libertine, the gourmand, the confidence man, are all successes, since they all contrive somehow to carry out their plans.

But obviously it is not in such sense that the word is here used. By success is here meant success in life, the making good of the aim that one shall have regarding his existence as a human being.

Is this aim realized in the accumulation of riches, in the piling up of a fortune in dollars and cents, together with whatever goes along with such a fortune—a splendid establishment, fine horses and equipages, grand social functions and a fine time generally?

Man or Money?

SHALL we, in a word, correct the old Greek philosopher who said, "Man is the measure of all things," by roundly declaring that "Money is the measure of all things"?

If money is the measure of all things, then the bank official who blew out his brains the other day was a success, for it is said that that unfortunate personage died a millionaire.

If money is the measure of all things, there was the soundest of sound sense in the remark of the hard-headed New Englander who, standing under the glorious dome of St. Peter's, exclaimed: "Great God! What a lot of capital there is lying around here idle!"

If money is the measure of all things, there was both pith and moral to the reply once made by a matter-of-fact Chicagoan to his companion on the summit of Pike's Peak: "Don't talk to me about your glorious view. How in the devil would you go about it to build a railroad in this accursed place?"

If money is the measure of all things, then Crœsus was infinitely more of a success than Socrates or Plato, and any one of the thousands of our American plutocrats is in this regard far ahead of Emerson, or Lincoln, or Phillips Brooks.

Seek Riches Within

BUT possibly life is to be measured by manhood rather than by money, by character rather than by cash; in which event it would appear that the true success is to be found not in what we pile up around ourselves, but in what we are able to experience within ourselves.

The most successful man is the one who makes the most of himself, not the one who uses himself to make the most of something else—the most money, or the most fame, or the most external display.

To succeed is to so train the mind that it shall be able to think great thoughts; the heart, so that it shall be able to cherish fine and generous sentiments; the soul, so that it shall be prepared to see and love the pure, the beautiful and the good in nature and in man.

As a human success the poor old lame slave, Epictetus, towered head and shoulders above the richest grandee of the Greek and Roman dominions; and, judged by the same rule, there is no multi-millionaire on earth to-day who is fit to be compared with the great souls whose only wealth lay in their intellectual and moral beauty, in their disinterested loves and heaven-reading thoughts, in the simple majesty of their plain, but beautiful manhood.

Manhood Life's Aim

IN a word, success is the grave, conscientious living of your life as a man—the rounding out, through struggle and trial, of your possibilities as a rational, moral human being.

To reach the end of the way with a clear conscience and a soul unstained, with your nature developed to the full extent of your ability, with your mental and moral capital used up to the full measure of your opportunity—that is success. And beyond that there is nothing that a good or wise man cares to trouble himself about.

Will She Admit It Is True?

THE National Union of Women Workers in London has just been discussing a subject which concerns every woman, and every man, too, whether a worker or not—the subject of Growing Old.

Mrs. Creighton, who read a paper on the subject, seemed to think that women are more prone to this complaint than men.

Why Does

a married woman, she asked, so often cease developing as soon as she becomes a wife? As a matter of experience, isn't it more often the wife who develops and the unmarried woman whose mental and spiritual growth is checked?

Some people think it develops a girl more to sit in an office all day or write novels than to look after babies and a home. Others fancy the secret of development is to be found in books. Yet very often who has read next to nothing knows far more about herself and human nature generally than the most learned girl graduates the universities have ever turned out.

In her main contention, however, Mrs. Creighton was on solid ground. She clearly meant that as soon as one ceased to develop one began to grow old.

Everyone must have had the ill-fortune to come across cases of little people who, by being "spoilt," and taught to consider themselves perfect, became horribly self-satisfied and began to even before they had reached their teens. There are men of seventy who are far younger than such children—more interested in life, more eager for knowledge, younger in soul.

The business of life helps to broaden men's characters. Looking after husband and children quickens the sympathies of women who are wives. Girls who go out into the world to earn their own living soon get their corners rubbed off and their field of vision enlarged.

But what is there to develop unmarried women who have no occupation, no resources? They grow old any other class. Their minds are like squirrels in cages; they turn round and round to no purpose. They have no end to pursue.

It is not length of years which makes people old. It is lack of interests, lack of sympathy, lack of love. So long as the brain is clear and the springs of emotion still active—so long as the faculty of wonder remains, no one need grow old.

It used to be considered the height of good manners never to be surprised or very much interested in anything. We have happily outgrown that silly idea. Nowadays who assumes omniscience is laughed at, and a woman who pretended not to marvel at this wonder-full world would be set down as silly.

This is why we are so much younger than our grandfathers and grandmothers were—men and women, too.

Expert Advice on Health and Beauty

BY THE PROFESSOR

ROUND, PLUMP FACE

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Please tell me what will make the face round and plump.
A CONSTANT READER.

EAT fattening foods and massage with a circular motion; also slap the cheeks until the color comes to them vividly; then dash with cold water. Avoid warm water, as it tends to make the flesh flabby.

DARKEN EYEBROWS

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Please tell me what will blacken my eyebrows.

WALNUT stain will darken the eyebrows as also the Chinese stain which is given below: Powder one-half dram of India ink and one dram of gum arabic Triturate with rose water, small quantities of each, until the powder has all been used and you have a uniform liquid, then add enough of rosewater to make the whole amount used four ounces. Apply with a tiny camel's hair brush.

DEVELOP BUST

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Please tell me some simple massage that will enlarge the bust. I am not very thin, but have been sick a great deal. I am well now, but my bust never developed again.
MRS. A. E. S.

USE a circular motion, using cocoa butter, olive oil or some specially prepared skin food. Be sure that you are gentle and do not bruise the flesh. Massage night and morning for about fifteen minutes; then bathe the bust in cold water into which a little benzoin has been dropped. Alcohol also is good to harden the tissues. In massaging be careful to let the centre of the bust alone and manipulate only around it.

A SIMPLE WAY TO AVOID COLDS

WOMEN who work in offices, stores or factories are especially liable to colds because of the dust, draughts and lack of ventilation. Deep breathing is the best preventive of cold known, and any girl can practice this behind counter or desk without attracting attention.

If you feel a cold coming on, try this simple exercise when retiring, rising or when you have a minute to yourself in the cloak room at the store.

If the left nostril seems to be obstructed, swing your right arm above the head and down until the middle finger of your right hand presses against the left nostril.

Then breathe through the other nostril in short, puffy breaths, and finally, still using the breathing exercises, bend from one side to the other.

After doing this five times, swing the left arm over the head and down until the middle finger of that hand touches the right nostril, and reverse the entire exercise. This is a more simple cure than drugs and infinitely more palatable and certain.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

A SUFFICIENT REASON

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am a young lady, twenty-four years old, and would like to ask your advice. For the past four months a young gentleman has been calling on me regularly three times a week. He called one evening two weeks ago and we had a number of young people calling. Foolingly I kissed some of the young men, which he didn't seem to like, as he told me about it next time he called. Do you think this is any reason for him to stay away?
READER.

YES, my dear, I do think it is quite enough to make a man stay away. He probably was very much disappointed in you. Never behave in that way even in fun. It is forward and unladylike, and any man whose good opinion was worth having would disapprove of it very much.

LET MATTER DROP

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I met a young man about five months ago and he was very attentive to me at the time. I was very nice to him, but there are quite a few girls who like him, and he is a trifle conceited. I know a friend of his, and she tells me that Mr. —— always asks for me and thinks I am lovely, but would not like to go with me because I am not a girl who will be jollied along by a fellow, and he cannot think of marriage because he has two older sisters, he being the only son. Now, when I meet the fellow he seems rather cool or hardly speaks to me unless some one asks him something, then he will look at me and answer. I let his friend talk, but never said anything about him, as I know she will go and tell him, which I do not want. When we are to meet the fellow she lets me know, and then she will say: "Now, don't make a fuss over Mr. ——, as he will think you are in love with him," and that gets me angry, and I act very cool to the fellow. What do you think this girl is trying to do? Do you think the young man likes me, as I am very fond of him.
BIRD.

DO not talk to her about him nor allow her to talk to you. When you meet him treat him cordially and politely, but do nothing to show more than a friendly liking. I think the girl is a dangerous friend and you would be wise to be very careful of what you tell her. If I were you I would avoid both the girl and the man as much as possible.

WEDDING FOR NEWSPAPER PEOPLE ONLY

Bride, Groom, Pastor, Best Man, License Clerk, All Past or Present Journalists.

DELUGED WITH COPY PAPER

John W. Colton, formerly of the BOSTON AMERICAN'S editorial staff, and now city editor of the Springfield Evening Union, has been married at the bride's home, on Wilbraham road, in that city, to Miss Elizabeth J. Garland, a linotype operator on the paper, the officiating clergyman having been a reporter for the Union twenty years ago. He is the Rev. George S. Rollins, pastor of the Hope Church.

Miss Frances M. Fletcher of Belchertown was bridesmaid and William H. Dearden the best man. Mr. Dearden is a reporter on the Union now.

City Clerk E. A. Newell, who issued the marriage license, was city editor of the Union at the time the pastor who performed the ceremony was a reporter.

Mr. and Mrs. Colton were showered with copy paper as they departed on their honeymoon.

KEEP MONEY IN THE BANKS --W. L. DOUGLAS

BROCKTON, Nov. 21.—Former Governor William L. Douglas, who is one of the biggest shoe manufacturers in the country, believes that within two months there will be more money in the country than the people and business men will know what to do with, and urges depositors to leave their money in the banks. He sees no necessity for withdrawing funds and the effect is detrimental to the employes as well as employers. In an interview Mr. Douglas said:

"In some cities I notice people are drawing their money from the banks and hoarding it. They may not realize the effect of that policy. When the people draw their money from banks they simply keep the trouble going, helping to reduce the number who have employment. The more money drawn from the banks the more people out of work. There is no necessity for drawing out the money.

"In my own business I am going right along just as I did a year ago. We have more business than we did last Spring.

"In my opinion, the $300,000,000 which the federal government and private sources are arranging to inject into the monetary channels of the country will remove all stringency.

"I believe firmly that in two months there will be more money than the people and the business men will know what to do with. I believe that the rates of interest will drop from 7 and 10 per cent. to 4 and 5 per cent., and perhaps even to 3.

"The people should leave their money in the banks. It is perfectly safe there, far safer than in their own homes."

REGISTRATION DISAPPOINTING TO DEMOCRATS

Democratic leaders are little pleased with the final registration figures for the city election, which show a loss of 382 votes over last year, an off year in municipal politics, and a loss of 1,638 over 1905, when Louis A. Frothingham was the Republican candidate for Mayor against John F. Fitzgerald. The figures at the close of registration last night were 112,150, as against 112,532 last year and 113,788 in 1905.

Every Democratic ward in the city except Ward 16 shows a loss over the 1905 registration, and the gain in Ward 16 is but 175. The Democratic wards which show losses are Wards 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 13, 14, 15, 17, 18 and 19. It is admitted in Democratic circles that there was no interest in registration, and that the ward leaders absolutely refused to do anything to build up the voting list.

The double column registration advertisement which has been running in the Mayor's weekly, the Republic, for several weeks, appears to have done no good to the party.

POPE TO NAME NO AMERICAN CARDINAL

ROME, Nov. 21.—The Pope has definitely decided not to appoint a new American cardinal at the consistory, December 5. He had intended to make no new appointments at all, but such powerful representations have been made in favor of several Italian candidates that he will probably yield.

HUB BANKERS TO DISCUSS CRISIS

Francis B. Sears, vice-president of the National Shawmut Bank, and other prominent Boston bankers, will discuss "The Present Financial Situation" at the Boston Club to-night. Most of the prominent financiers of Boston are expected to be present, and possibly participate in the discussion. George L. Barnes will preside.

CRIMSON SOCCERS PLAY TODAY

The Harvard Association football team will go to Springfield to play its first game of the season with the Springfield Manual Training School at 2:30 this afternoon. The team has been out for three weeks at work and is able to put up a fast game. The management is trying to arrange games with Yale and Princeton.

NEWS OF THE THEATRES

The Boston Theatre stock company has proved so successful, and the Boston theatregoers have been so enthusiastic over it, that Manager Lindsay Morison has arranged to continue the production of plays there all through next Spring and Summer, as well as next Winter. Some of the biggest productions will be put on next Summer. This ensures the famous old Boston Theatre being kept open the year round, with big productions of popular plays. Plans for next Winter's plays are now being made.

Vesta Victoria returned to the stage of the Tremont last night and was given an ovation, the big audience joining in the choruses of her songs. She is making her farewell appearances in this country. Edith Helena and the dog that plays "The Last Rose of Summer" upon the piano are also strong favorites this week. Louis Mann comes Monday.

Arrangements have been practically completed whereby the San Carlo Grand Opera Company is to produce in this city, for the first time on any stage, the grand opera "Azara," which was written some years ago by the late Professor J. K. Paine of Harvard College. Manager Russell came here yesterday to consult with Mrs. J. K. Paine with regard to the production of the opera, and when he returned to New York he took the score with him.

At the Majestic Theatre David Belasco's "The Rose of the Rancho" continues to draw crowded houses. Frances Starr and her supporting players are giving most finished performances of the picturesque drama. There is entertainment in the course of the evening for the most blase as well as the youngest of playgoers, and the scenic effects are marvels of beauty. Seats are selling for Thanksgiving Day matinee.

Ernest Hogan and his big company, including John Rucker and Carita Day, are certainly more than making "good" at the Globe with the latest Hogan musical comedy, "The Oyster Man." Like all of the Hogan shows it is funny and tuneful and he has put many new features in the new play.

One of the strongest scenes in the melodrama, "Since Nellie Went Away," which is at the Grand Opera House, is the one in which the villain attempts the life of Nellie by fastening her to one of the arms of a huge mill wheel, in which position she is compelled to make two complete revolutions. Another big scene is the rescue of the heroine during a storm at sea.

With the close of this week "Lohengrin" ends its highly successful three weeks' run at the Castle Square. Never has this famous Wagnerian opera been so well received in Boston, and never has it been repeated so many times before such large audiences as have been the rule since its opening night. Next Monday "Rob Roy," the DeKoven & Smith comic opera, founded on Sir Walter Scott's novel, will be revived.

Peter Carr and his wrestling bear Teddy, the cowboy girl rifle shot and a half-dozen other notable features form the attraction in the curio hall at Austin & Stone's Museum this week. Free seats for the theatre shows is furnishing crowded houses.

Lulu Glaser has made an unquestioned personal success here in "Lola from Berlin," by John J. McNally, at the Hollis Street Theatre. The engagement will close next Saturday night. That will leave only four more performances for Boston.

Montgomery and Stone continue to be the talk of the town at the Colonial Theatre, and the third week of the engagement of "The Red Mill" is quite the best yet. It is an exceedingly original work, and it enables the two stars to be even funnier than they were in the days of "The Wizard of Oz."

That Boston cares emphatically for the serious drama is shown conclusively at the Park Theatre. "The Hypocrites" has proved the greatest dramatic success of the season at that house, and it is the universal verdict of Bostonians that no work from the pen of Henry Arthur Jones that could compare with this has ever been seen here. Jessie Millward and Richard Bennett still head Charles Frohman's splendid company.

Hattie Williams will be back again next Monday evening, more vivacious than ever and with new features to add to "The Little Cherub." This time she will be seen at the Hollis Street Theatre, and she will have a royal welcome there, for the patrons of that house well remember "The Girl from Kay's" and the other musical comedies which she has played so successfully there.

Miss Mamie Lee, the little Lynn girl who made such a big hit at the Columbia last season, is a member of the Twentieth Century Maids, now playing at that theatre.

HARVARD CONFIDENT OF KEEPING SCORE DOWN WELL IN SATURDAY'S BIG GAME

Crimson Players Will Go to Norfolk Hunt Club Today to Rest—All the Men Are in Good Shape and Newhall Will Be in the Struggle.

Yale Kickers Will Reach Auburndale Tonight—All Except Two Are Fit—Elis Have a Lively Time at Their Last Practice at New Haven.

With the great gridiron struggle of Yale and Harvard only two days away the Hub is already taking on a football air. The hotels are filling to overflowing, and everybody is talking of prospects of the game. Young fellows are telling each other how improved the pigskin contest is these days, while gray haired alumni will inform you that it's nothing compared to what it was fifteen years ago.

And don't forget the speculator of the coveted pasteboards admitting you to the Stadium Saturday. He's a busy man these days and as he has not as many tickets as in previous years he's asking a small fortune for his stock and he's getting it too.

The Harvard players are in much better shape than they have been this year and they are pretty likely to put up a game against the Blue which will be worth seeing.

STUDENTS CHEER PLAYERS.

Cheered on by 2,000 students, their last scrimmage was a good one and perfectly satisfactory to the coaches.

During the practice the undergraduates cheered and sang the whole time, and their work was greatly appreciated by the team. Long after the varsity had gone into the locker building to dress the crowd sat in the Stadium singing the football songs and did not break up until the scrimmage was over. Then the students gathered around the locker building and cheered the players individually. Not a man was forgotten, and the managers came in for as hearty a cheer as the others.

This afternoon at about 1:30 the football players will leave Cambridge for Medfield, where they will put up at the Norfolk Hunt Club.

The following men will be taken to Medfield to-day: Apollonio, Barney, Bird, Brennan, Burr, Brock, Browne, Cutting, Fish, Grant, Hadden, Hoar, Houston, Inches, Lockwood, Macdonald, Newhall, Parker, M. C. Peirce, Rand, Starr, Waterbury, Trainer Donovan and his assistant, Jack McClusky, and Managers Dutcher and Eggleston.

NOURSE WILL BE MISSED.

Nourse, who has been giving Grant a hard rub for centre all the season, and who is an unusually fast and powerful man for his weight, has been obliged to go to New York on account of the death of his father. It is exceedingly unlikely that he will be able to return to Cambridge for the Yale game, or that if he does he will be able to play in the game. His loss will be a heavy one, as he is almost as good a man as Grant. Barney, who played such a good game against Yale two years ago, but who has not played much this season, will now probably be first substitute to Grant.

Newhall is getting along well and the management is having a special headgear made for him, so that he will be able to play in the game Saturday without further injuring his forehead. Bird has had trouble with his legs, but hopes to be in shape to start the game. Starr's knee is recovering. The trouble was not water on the knee, but was only a wrench. He does not limp any now. Burr is picking up and should be in the best of form by the end of the week.

THEATRE PARTY SATURDAY.

To-morrow morning the Harvard boys will return to Cambridge early for breakfast at the training table, and after their recitation they will return to Medfield for the night, returning to Cambridge again Saturday morning for their recitations and lectures and the final battle of the season. On Saturday evening the team will break training at Young's Hotel in Boston and then attend "The Red Mill" at the Colonial Theatre.

NO WALKOVER FOR YALE.

The Harvard Bulletin, in an editorial, says:

"It does not follow because Harvard has been beaten at football by both Carlisle and Dartmouth that Yale will have a walkover in the Stadium next Saturday. The Bulletin does not wish to withdraw its statement that the chances favor Yale. The New Haven team has been consistently strong and its remarkable victory over Princeton last Saturday makes it still more powerful; but the Harvard players will have everything to gain and nothing to lose when they line up against their rivals, and pluck and courage will accomplish a good deal, even against an eleven which has been hitherto invincible.

"Two years ago, when Reid coached the Harvard eleven, the betting on the Yale game was four to one in favor of Yale; but neither side scored until about eight minutes before the end of the game and then a muffed punt enabled Yale to cross Harvard's goal line. Until that time Harvard had done better than Yale. Even in 1901, when Campbell's eleven badly beat Yale, the betting before the game favored Yale.

BIG SCORE UNLIKELY.

"We do not expect to see Yale make as many points as Dartmouth made. Harvard's defence last Saturday was much better than it had been the week before, and further improvement will doubtless be made this week. One should remember, also, that Dartmouth was unable to rush the ball across Harvard's goal line and that the element of luck entered into all of Dartmouth's scores. If Harvard had had the same kind of fortune, at least one touchdown would have been made against Dartmouth. On the whole, therefore, in spite of the score of last Saturday's game, that contest was in reality not as discouraging as most people thought it was."

The Yale team will arrive at Auburndale late this afternoon.

ORGANIZED CHEERING.

Organized cheering and singing was introduced during the dinner hour at Memorial Hall, and the Pierian Sodality and Kanrich's band were both on hand to furnish the accompanying music. To defray the expenses "Capt." Mitchell, the colored head-waiter, went up and down the aisle with a shoe box in which to receive contributions, and before he had finished the receptacle was more than half full, with greenbacks not totally missing. At times the enthusiasm caused a complete forsaking of dinner, and each successive song brought forth more prolonged applause than the preceding. The music will be continued during the dinner hours for the remainder of the week.

YALE PLAYERS FIT FOR GAME EXCEPT CONGDON AND PAIGE

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 21.—Here is how Yale will start the game with Harvard Saturday: H. Jones, l. e.; Foster, l. t.; Cooney, l. g.; Dunbar, c.; Goebel, r. g.; Bigiow, r. t.; Alcott, r. e.; T. Jones, q. b.; Brides, l. h. b.; Bomar, r. h. b.; Coy, f. b.

At the Elis' last work on Yale Field all the regulars were out except Congdon and Paige.

Congdon was at the field in citizen's clothes. He is able to step on his lame ankle, but it is still nothing more than an even chance that he will be able to play Saturday.

Paige was out in uniform and went through the signals, but did not take part in the scrimmage. He is in just about the same condition as Congdon.

Congdon is out of condition; he has bad knees and it is hardly possible that he will be able to play his game.

It was the intention of the coaches to wind up the scrimmage work with some fast work. The team, however, showed that it needed rest as much as training, and so the work was shortened. After the scrimmage with the freshmen the work was stopped. There was no scrimmage between the varsity and the scrubs.

Gridiron Offering.

The last act of the year on the Yale field was the burning of an offering on the gridiron. Every one of the varsity men who are seniors contributed a portion of his uniform to the bonfire on which was poured a gallon of alcohol by "Sid" Coe, the rubber.

This was lighted by Captain Biglow, and around it he and Alcott, Howard Jones, Paige, Congdon, "Tad" Jones and Bomar danced and sang the old Omega Lambda Chi song. They danced until the fire turned to ashes. This rite has been performed on the Yale gridiron for a quarter of a century, and is never omitted.

The coaches at the field were Walter Camp, Field Coach Knox, Veeder, Carl Flanders, Jim Hogan, Foster Rockwell, W. W. Heffelfinger, Phil Smith and Ralph Kinney.

These coaches will accompany the team to Auburndale this afternoon. The players will leave here at 1:42 o'clock, and go by way of Springfield. They will occupy the same quarters at Auburndale that they have had before the last three Harvard games.

Not Enough Tickets.

The tickets for the Harvard game were all sent out. The Yale demand has not been satisfied by thousands. Graduates and townspeople are still clamoring for tickets. It is feared that tricks have been worked by crooks to get tickets for the purpose of speculation. The Yale management has had detectives out to look up bogus applications and to round up speculators.

A group of Boston speculators arrived here. They started in offering bonuses to students for their tickets. The ticket department at once got after the speculators, and to-day they had disappeared.

RAILROADS PREPARE TO HANDLE BIG CROWD SATURDAY

The New York, New Haven & Hartford expects a heavy travel to-morrow and Saturday, and thus far plans to meet it by the addition of extra coaches to the regular trains. A large number of special cars will be handled in this way. The Boston & Maine will run no extra trains Saturday.

A service to Allston from the South Station has been arranged by the Boston & Albany, trains leaving the South Station at 12:30, 12:50 and 1:15 o'clock for the accommodation of the game-bound crowd.

GOOD WEATHER IS PREDICTED FOR SATURDAY'S GAME

According to the Weather Man, there will be good weather for Saturday's game. Rain or snow is the prediction to-day, but the bureau will do its best to have everything nice and pleasant by to-morrow night.

WENDELL, HARVARD'S CLEVER BACK.

The clever Crimson player is in good form and will be a big factor in the game with Yale. He is considered one of the best backs on the college gridiron to-day.

NEIL FAVORITE IN BOUT WITH OWEN MORAN

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—What will they say in the East?

For a couple of weeks resident sporting men of San Francisco have been receiving quiet tips from New York and vicinity that Owen Moran, English featherweight, is the best piece of fighting machinery in small compass that ever came Americaward. To neglect a bet on the compact little Britisher when he fights Frankie Neil is compared to slamming the door in the face of fortune.

And what is San Francisco's answer? Genial Tom Corbett, who occasionally makes a specialty of bringing sports of opposite opinion together, has been entrusted with $2,000 to place on Neil in the ratio of $10 of Neil money for every $8 of Moran backing that offers. The Eastern critics describe Moran as a cyclone. The description also fits Neil. It is understood Neil's punching ability, allied with his proven gameness has made him a favorite in the local market.

The recollection of the fact that Neil has nearly always had to give weight to his opponent has also helped to establish him in the affections of the students of fistic form this trip. The event will be the first of two highly important international matches at present in prospect. The other affair is the Gunner Moir-Tommy Burns bout, which takes place at the National Sporting Club, London, on the night of December 2. Neil and Moran will box Friday night at Dreamland.

The two featherweights are through with their training and are doing just enough to keep at weight.

BRIGGS PICKED TO WIN BOUT

At Dover to-night the battle between Jimmy Briggs, the lightweight champion of New England, and Kid Freeman will be an interesting affair, and if there is not a winner inside of six rounds there will be a disappointed lot of sports in both corners. Freeman says that it is the chance of his life, and he is going to improve it, while Briggs says there is nothing to it, and that he will cause Freeman's inflated dome to decrease in size considerably after to-night. Briggs is in good shape and confident of retaining his title. The other bouts are attracting a lot of attention, too, and the Dover sports are particularly interested in Kid Sullivan, who faces the dark horse, Denny Ryan, of Chelsea.

CLINE IN THE LEAD.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 21.—Harry Cline of Philadelphia was elevated to the lead in the three-cushion billiard tournament for the championship of America by the defeat of John Daly of New York at the hands of John Horgan of Elmira, N. Y. The score was: Horgan, 50; Daly, 45. Cline defeated Joseph Capron of Canada, 50 to 24.

'METS' CUPS FOR WINNNIG TURFMEN

At a meeting of the racing committee of the Metropolitan Driving Club in the clubhouse the awards of cups for the best work in the season's matinees were announced, as follows:

Fastest time for a trotter, against time, Chase, b. g., Belledeu, 1:00¼.

Fastest average time in a race, Hulman, b. g., Fred C. Carman, 1:04½.

Most points in a race, trotters, 19, Lady Klondike, br. m., J. A. Craig; Gloria Rex, b. m., 17, E. B. Phillips, second.

Fastest time in a race for pacers, Al Ray, b. g., E. B. Phillips, 1:04½.

Most points in a race for pacers, Belle Gold, ch. m., 15, W. F. Maher, first; Elmwood, ch g., T. J. Waters, 14, second.

TRAPSHOOTERS WILL TRY FOR STONE TROPHY

This afternoon at Wellington there will be some exciting trap shooting. The Paleface Gun Club will be out in force to shoot for the Fred A. Stone trophy, a beautiful silver cup, octagonal in shape, and decorated with guns and with the figure of a retriever in silver at its base.

The cup is offered to New England trap shooters by the well-known comedian, Fred Stone, of Montgomery and Stone, now playing in "The Red Mill" at the Colonial Theatre. It goes to the one making the two best aggregate scores for three shoots. The tourneys will take place to-day and Nov. 26 and on Dec. 6, and will each call for 100 targets thrown at unknown angles at the sixteen-yard range.

KLINE WINS FIERCE BOUT.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21.—In six rounds of fierce and bloody fighting, Patsey Kline of Newark, N. J., beat Mitchell Levy, a Baltimore favorite, at the Monumental Theatre.

ROUSE O'BRIEN GOES TO DRAW WITH DESHLER

Decision, However, Unsatisfactory and the Cambridge Boxer Clearly Earned the Honors of Cooper A. C. Bout.

Showing grit and gameness that saved him a decisive defeat, Rouse O'Brien of South Boston went the twelve rounds with Dave Deshler of Cambridge at the Cooper A. C., and Referee Flaherty called it a draw.

In spite of O'Brien's wonderful exhibition of pluck and staying powers, Deshler clearly earned the decision, as he had a shade the better of the milling from the seventh round, the bell alone saving O'Brien in the eleventh, when he fell out of the ring and fought mechanically to the end of the session. Deshler had him in his power, but apparently held himself in check, though he made Rouse take the count.

It was the second time the pair met, the first occasion being all in favor of O'Brien, but the South Boston boy was not in the same shape as in his previous battle, and fought handicapped by having his eye closed early in the bout. Half blinded, he made a remarkably gamey fight, coming back with stunning clouts when Deshler was forcing him to the ropes and getting away from his opponent's aggressive rushing tactics by clever dodging and ducking.

O'Brien established his reputation for taking punishment and dispelled any doubts that he was one of the toughest lightweights in this section of the country. He took a heavy hammering to the jaw without flinching, and when on the point of being dropped by Deshler, managed to evade the killing haymaker which Deshler was trying his best to get over.

It was a question of speed and endurance from the first gong tap. Deshler was primed for any kind of a chase, but O'Brien stepped so lively that he showed signs at different stages of being tired, which was increased by O'Brien's constant attention to slapping them on the body with lots of steam.

O'Brien Got Bad Fall.

O'Brien undoubtedly would have made a whirlwind finish, and did surprise the ringsiders, but for his tumble out of the roped enclosure in the eleventh round. He landed on the back of his head and when helped back on to the mat was practically defenceless, and Deshler sailed in. O'Brien went down for the count and when on his feet again reeled around the ring and just managed to totter out of Deshler's reach as he tore into him.

That O'Brien stayed the whole distance was marvelous to the fans, who were up and amazed at the action of the Peninsula lad.

In the early rounds it was a fine duel of straight lefts between the two sharpshooters. O'Brien was snappy in the use of his jab, but Deshler countered him well and kept stepping in while O'Brien kept backing to the ropes. On the barrier Deshler had a better chance to measure his foe and did a lot of damage. O'Brien's wonderful shiftiness when hotly pressed enabled him to elude a lot of execution by slipping out of tight places.

Deshler was out to make good on his defeat at the hands of O'Brien in their last encounter, and never stopped going after O'Brien. He was caught often by O'Brien's cat-like quickness in flashing a jab or hooking for the body, but he handed out plenty of punishment at close range and was able to stand the steamy pace better.

Johnny Fitzgerald of South Boston and Johnny Egan of Philadelphia went six rounds to a draw, but Fitz was obliged to take the count in one of the early rounds.

Denny Ryan of Cambridge did a fine piece of work when he stopped Johnny Cavill of the West End in five rounds in the semi-final bout scheduled for eight.

PAPKE HAS BIG JOB TO BEAT TWO BOXERS

Bill Papke, the Western thunderbolt, speaking of his bouts with Haghey and Connolly at Chelsea to-morrow, is confident that he will win both, but he thinks that the task is a hard one, especially if the first engagement is any way arduous. If he fails it will not be for want of endeavor to win, for Papke says he is going to win as quickly as possible.

He will have his troubles, however, as Jeffries, Thomas and other big stars have utterly failed in attempts to defeat two men in the same evening.

Haghey, who is the first to be introduced to Papke, will make him go some, if his work against Jim Barry of Chicago is any criterion. Battley Connolly, who is to figure in the windup with the Western man, is confident that he will outpoint him.

It will be a great battle and Bill will know that he has been in a bout, for his adversary is no weak-kneed individual. He is a game boy and one of the best at his weight in the country.

The bout between Charley Williams of Gloucester and Bill McKinnon, the champion middleweight of the national tournament, will be an event of much moment to the members. The boys contest for the heavyweight championship of New England, as Sandy Ferguson has given up all claim to it.

Mike Grady and Gus Ross, the Italian champions, will figure in a bout that is likely to wind up with a vendetta thrown in. Mike got a decision at one time over Ross at Gloucester in twelve rounds, and they also fought a draw, but neither has been friendly to the other ever since.

The office of the club, No. 7 Water street, this city, will be open until 9 o'clock to-night.

BIG INDOOR TRACK GAMES

The first big indoor track meet of the season comes on December 4, and the scene will be in the Park Square Coliseum, which is now perfectly adapted for the athletes to bring out the best performances. George Brown of the B. A. A. is managing the monster meet, which is assurance that it will be one of the best in athletic talent ever seen in the Hub. The whole string of crack Unicorn Club runners and jumpers will be in the competition besides all the leading clubs in the State, and a string of New York stars will show their mettle. Special events for grammar school boys have brought out a lot of interest in that direction. Entry blanks can be obtained from George Brown, B. A. A., Exeter street, Boston.

W. E. M'CLINTOCK TO SPEAK AT MOTORISTS' MEETING

By J. C. KERRISON.

Chairman W. E. McClintock of the Massachusetts Highway Commission has accepted the invitation to address the motorists at the gathering of the Bay State Automobile Association at Hotel Oxford on Saturday evening, November 30. The chairman will talk on motor matters in general, and in particular discuss the question of how the motorists at large can best assist in the recognition and enforcement of the laws governing the use of automobiles on the roads and highways. Every one knows full well that the motorists themselves can, if they so desire, become an important factor in the recognition of the legal requirements, and Chairman McClintock will particularize along those lines. Other speakers will be secured for that evening, and the entertainment committee, at whose head is George W. McNear, is to do everything in its power to make this a representative gathering, not alone of the members of the B. S. A. A., but also of the motorists of this section. All owners and drivers of motor vehicles are invited to be present at the meeting. Prior to the holding of the smoketalk, if such it can be termed, a special dinner will be served at the clubhouse, No. 282 Dartmouth street.

Alvan T. Fuller has issued a word of advice to his numerous patrons in the following statement:

"Cold weather will soon be upon us. Don't neglect your car by allowing water to remain in the circulating system without an anti-freezing solution. If you do, it will freeze and burst something. Until such time as it is possible for you to obtain some anti-freeze, we suggest that you drain the water out when the car is left to stand over night or for any great length of time, but be sure to refill it before starting out with it again."

This being the 134th anniversary of the first ascension of man in a balloon, the subscribers to the agreement to organize the Aero Club of New England will meet at Young's Hotel this evening.

Professor A. Lawrence Rotch will read an interesting paper on ballooning, and exhibit the autograph letter of Benjamin Franklin describing the first ascension. Mr. Leo Stevens, aeronaut, of New York, will talk on practical ballooning. Mr. Stevens has made over 1,100 ascensions. A list of officers, constitution and bylaws will be submitted and the organization made permanent.

Archie E. Hughes, who almost made a perfect score in the contest for the individual runabout trophy in this year's annual A. A. A. tour, has evolved an ingenious automatic lighting apparatus for automobile gas lamps. Mr. Hughes formerly lived in Providence, where he joined the Rhode Island Automobile Club, and it was as a representative of that organization that he entered his Pierce runabout in last Summer's tour from Cleveland to New York, by way of Chicago. For some time past, however, Mr. Hughes has lived in Philadelphia, and it was in the calm, peaceful atmosphere of the Quaker metropolis that he wearied of striking matches to light the gas lamps on his car. So he rigged up small spark plugs, somewhat similar to the ones used for ignition purposes, inside the lamps so a current of electricity could be switched on when the gas is turned on. The electric spark lights the gas and saves not only the necessity of carrying a stock of matches, but also the too frequent getting out into a muddy road to light up.

OLD DARTMOUTH TO CELEBRATE

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 21.—All is ready for the Dartmouth football celebration to-night.

The Dartmouth freshmen have been been working hard getting wood and stray timber for the great bonfire. Speeches will be made by prominent alumni and football men, comic songs and cheers will be in order, and the whole student body is preparing for a grand celebration of the victory at Cambridge last Saturday.

HOLDEN IN BIG GAMES

WORCESTER, Nov. 21.—The Y. M. C. A. athletes have formed a team for the indoor meet which will take place at Park Street Rink, Boston. The team will be managed by Robert Dixon and participate in all the runs. Holden, the holder of the mile record, will be on the team.

BLACKBURN BEATS LEWIS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21. — Jack Blackburn scored an easy victory over Harry Lewis at the National Athletic Club. Blackburn had a big advantage over Lewis in height and reach, and these he used to splendid advantage in every round.

MAY ADMIT HOLY CROSS.

WORCESTER, Nov. 21.—Because of the athletic differences now involving Brown and Dartmouth, Holy Cross is hopeful of being admitted to the New England Intercollegiate Association. Year after year they have applied for admittance, but Brown and Amherst have opposed them.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

Roxbury Storage Salesrooms

Wise Piano Buyer

Don't hover around the high-priced piano district—like the moth around the flame. You'll surely get burned if you do.

The gilded piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high-salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer. Come up where the rents are not so high, where there are no agents' commissions for you to pay, and where there are no iron-clad piano trust agreements in force to make you pay a big, unfair price. Come up to the Roxbury Storage Salesrooms, where we scalp the piano trust every day. Every day is bargain day up here.

No Need to Choose Either of These Evils

You Can Make a Choice That Will Do Away with Both at One Stroke

The spectacle of Postmaster Hibbard going about from ward to ward and addressing little gatherings in which employees of the United States government, who work under Mr. Hibbard, are conspicuous by their presence, is not reassuring to the independent voters of Boston who seek to do away with machine politics.

As between Hibbard, with his band of political workers paid by the United States government, and Fitzgerald, with his band of henchman paid by the city of Boston, who is the choice?

Obviously, as between Hibbard and Fitzgerald, the choice is—COULTHURST.

The Man With the Fighting Jaw

He Seemed Very Terrible Till His Voice Betrayed Him

In a popular comedy the principal actor is made the boss of five other men.

To four of them he gives orders, and, to his great delight, he is promptly obeyed.

The fifth is of very forbidding countenance—low-browed, red-eyed, and with a great projecting "fighting" jaw.

Of this man, as he stands there glowering, the new boss is in manifest terror.

Several times he seeks to give the needful order. Each time he falters. He is convinced that as soon as he speaks to that man he will receive a frightful beating. The man's whole aspect, face, attitude, menacing fists, indicate trouble.

At last the comedian, resolved to save himself, turns away; and the awe-inspiring subordinate steps up and in a thin, meek voice inquires:

"Please, what would you like me to do?"

This scene is intended to be funny, and IT IS FUNNY.

Any faithful mirroring of our faults makes us laugh. It is probable that we laugh because we recognize the faults as those of others rather than ourselves: but most of us will admit privately that we are very like the comedian in this play, constantly terrified by APPEARANCES.

Perhaps you remember an editorial in this column on the elephant that for years was loaded with chains because his keepers believed that if given liberty he would wreck the Zoo and probably kill everybody he could reach.

One day the chains were taken off and the elephant refused to move. The poor brute had been chained so long in one spot that he could not be persuaded that he was free.

The fear that he would do mischief was without reason. Chained or unchained, he was perfectly harmless.

Like sheep, the proud and tameless masters of the earth go through life fearing what they have been taught to fear, bullying where they think it is safe to bully, taking their ideas and beliefs and habits from those nearest them.

In every "gang" of boys there is a bully, who rules the rest because he is larger and more muscular, and who occasionally thrashes SMALLER BOYS to prove his right to domineer.

Now and then another boy comes along who looks at the bully through his own eyes instead of through those of his friends.

Presently there is a dispute. The bully's right to be boss is questioned. A fight follows. The bully is displaced; but too often his victor sets himself up as the bully, so the other boys composing the "gang" are no better off than they were before.

In time boys, who are quick to learn, will discover that they can get along very well without bullies or bosses who hold their places by right of might.

When those boys grow into men they will find they do not need any rule save the kind that they arrange for their mutual good.

Our forefathers, long awed by the "divine right" of kings, at last learned that King George was merely a domineering old bully. It took seven years of fighting to get rid of him, but they did it. Since then this country has not paid tribute to royal families or collected its navies in bright new paint to celebrate the meaningless meeting of two rulers such as recently excited England and caused the humiliation of a brave admiral who preferred to have his ships practice gunnery rather than trick out in flags to do homage to an Emperor.

Talk of another king in this country is interesting, perhaps, but empty.

No man is wise enough, or great enough, or powerful enough to take entire charge of the affairs of more than eighty million people.

And, fortunately, there is no man in this country who has the slightest desire to become a king, or whose highest ambition would not be gratified if he were elected President, to SERVE rather than to rule the people.

Very far from perfect, we are gradually learning to judge men and things by what they can do rather than by what they seem.

The dreadful giant called DIFFICULTY that long stood in the way of progress and improvement has been subdued. The other and more terrible giant whose name was believed to be IMPOSSIBILITY is not so formidable as he seemed.

He had to be overthrown before steam, navigation, telephones, wireless telegraphy and horseless carriages could be numbered among human conveniences.

He was overthrown, and now his name is no longer Impossibility, and the men who are working for the future of the race take little notice of him.

To the sailors of Columbus's time the great Western ocean was as forbidding as the man with the fighting jaw in the comedy.

But after Columbus had crossed it this same ocean said in a gentle voice to all other men:

"Please, what would you like me to do?"

Ever since that time it has been serving the specks of humanity that sail about on its broad bosom.

In its turn the air, now just beginning to show signs of submission, will be tamed. Tropical heat and polar cold will be blended to make an equable climate over the whole earth. And even POVERTY, man's most terrible curse, the way to whose removal is still held to be barred by the giant IMPOSSIBILITY, will give way to a progress which refuses to see any such giant in its path.

ANOTHER SIDE OF THE AUTO QUESTION

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Heartily agreeing with Judge Williams of the Roxbury Police Court in his score of overspeeding of automobiles, I would like to call his attention to the other side of the question and ask him what protection there is for the autoist while driving through the city and suburbs at a low rate of speed, obeying the speed law to the letter, when he is besieged by boys on all sides, refusing to keep off the machine, even standing in the street and daring the driver to run over them, then climbing on the back of the car, the mud guards and every available place they can catch hold of. When asked kindly to keep off the machine, they laugh in the face of a practicing physician and call him and his wife names which are anything but decent.

Will the citizens and officers kindly take up the matter and give the autoist some protection?

A Playgoer's Catechism

By Wex Jones

Q.—Do trees grow on the stage?

A.—Lots of them.

Q.—Why?

A.—So that a heroine three feet six inches across may hide behind a "gnarled hole" two feet three inches across.

Q.—For what purpose?

A.—So that she may overhear the villain plotting to bury the miser's will in the geranium bed.

* * *

Q.—Why doesn't the villain destroy the will?

A.—Because in that event there could be no complications.

Q.—Who finds the missing will?

A.—The heroine.

Q.—How does she find it?

A.—While digging geraniums for her guardian's breakfast.

Q.—Are geraniums edible?

A.—Of course not; there must be a touch of comedy.

Q.—Having found the missing will, what does the heroine do with it?

A.—She wraps a pound of butter in it.

Q.—And then?

A.—The hero, who is cooking his own meals because of an estrangement with his family, buys the pound of butter.

Q.—Why is the hero estranged from his family?

A.—For some trifling peccadillo such as the murder of his aunt.

Q.—Having found the will wrapped around his pound of butter, what does the hero do?

A.—He eats the butter, goes out and marries the heroine, who has been disinherited and reduced to poverty owing to the earlier will which the miser's cousins had found in a dusty apple pie.

Q.—And then?

A.—The hero makes a dicker with his wife for three-quarters of the money coming to her if he digs up the later will.

* * *

Q.—And then what happens?

A.—He lives happy ever after.

Q.—What is the object of making a will?

A.—To furnish exercise and excitement for the surviving members of the family.

Q.—When a will has been made, what must be done with it?

A.—It must be concealed in a safe place.

Q.—A safe deposit vault, for instance?

A.—By no means. It must be slipped into a secret drawer, put in the lining of a coat or shoved underneath a carpet.

Q.—What are deeds?

A.—Things that speak louder than words—in real estate deals.

All of Us Are About the Same, After All

By Winifred Black

THE next time any one talks to me about the safe and sane business men of this or any other community I'm going to run away somewhere where it's quiet and laugh a while.

Safe and sane—and they haven't done a thing but scare all of us poor, light-headed, light-hearted things that don't know a cent's worth about high finance or care a button for it any way, whatever it is, half to death in the last week or so.

I'm beginning to think that the safe and sane business man will have to go up on the shelf with the competent domestic woman I used to believe in so faithfully.

I like good things to eat, all kinds of good things; old-fashioned cookies and peach cobbler and mince pie and turkey and sausage and buckwheat cakes, as well as frogs' legs and underdone ducks and a whole lot of the "a las." I didn't know a thing about cooking, and thought any woman who did know about it was pretty near to being a genius.

"She's little and narrow-minded and mean-spirited and not awfully clever"—I thought about certain gifted creatures I knew—"but think of the way she can cook! She must have brains hidden somewhere to do that."

And then one fateful hour I decided to try to learn to cook, myself, and—alas! the day—how my visions flew!

They've been fooling us all the time, these women who can cook. There's no mystery about the thing at all.

Anybody with a thimbleful of brains and a willing disposition can learn to cook like a seraph with a blue ribbon in his buttonhole, if that body really wants to do it.

All the mysterious nods and winks and solemn silences concerning the doughnut and cruller, all the lifting of the eyebrows over the real way to serve steak and mushrooms, were just a part of the mystery language of every trade. These wasn't anything really mysterious about the art at all. Since I've seen some safe and sane business men acting like frightened boys I begin to wonder if all this talk about high finance and brilliant commercial genius isn't a kind of Abracadabra, too.

One by one our visions leave us—that's what the poets are always trying to tell us, isn't it?

I like to see 'em go, myself.

I'm delighted to find out that we're all made of a good deal the same kind of rather perishable clay, and that one man isn't really such an awful lot cleverer than his brother, after all.

It makes me feel at home in this big schoolroom of a world of ours. And I'm not half so afraid of the final examinations as I used to be when I thought that the big boys at the head of the class were so amazingly bright, and that we poor little fellows down at the foot were so extraordinarily dull.

It's a kind of consolation once in a while to discover that there isn't so very much fundamental difference between the man with the pushcart and the man in the automobile, isn't it?

Bobbie's Essays

By William F. Kirk

MENTAL ARITHMETIK.

BOBBIE, my teecher sed, our first lesson this morning is Mental Arithmetik, a term wich cums from the Greek, sed teecher, Mental (meening Noodle) & Arithmetik (meening speedy) or Speedy Noodle, sed my teecher. Rite a essay, she sed, about Mental Arithmetik.

Mental Arithmetik is whare a man has to think twice befoar he pays once. The first man wich ever used it was Mister Noah when the animals was gitting thare numbers & standing in line for the Ark. Noah looked them over pritty good & he sed to hisself, sed he, Here is a leppard & a tiger & a lion & a Ant-eater.

Thare is only two (2) ants, so the Ant-eater will starve unless sumthing turns up in the way of food, two (2) ants isent much nurrishment, sed Noah.

Then the beests all caim around to see Mister Noah in the Ark & thay sed How do we know you are going to give us a steddy job floating around, we want a contrack, thay sed, to show us that you are on the square, so Noah had to do sum grate figgering.

In all the grate walks of Life, sed my Pa, thare is a call for Mental Arithmetik. Consider the humbel bookmaker, sed Pa, wich sets on his littel stool & waits for the common peepul to cum & git thare rights, he has to do sum quick figgering, beekaus he has to git the munny quick & hurry hoam in his ottomobeel past the savings bank.

Also, sed Pa, thare is the groacer. He has to taik time enuff to figger many sums, such as If a hen & a half lays a egg & a half in a hour & a half, how much a dozen (12) do we soak the suckers wich buys sed eggs? anser, fifty (50) cents.

Then again, Pa sed, thare is the butcher. He looks his customers rite in the eye & says When was beefsteak the highest? Ha, ha, his customers say, I suppose you think we are going to say When the cow jumped over the moon, but we ain't going to say that, we are going to say Yesterday, his customers tell the Butcher. Ha, ha, says the butcher, wrong again, the anser is not Yesterday, but To-day.

But after all, sed Pa, the gratest Mental Arithmetik is how to please your wife. Of course, Bobbie, sed Pa, thare is a gaim you have nevver been against, but when you do, Pa sed, remember the words of yure old Dad, wich will perhaps be laid away in the cold & silent ground, when you have a wife, & when you think of yure Pa say to yureself Deer old Dad, he stood for Ma, angels cud do no moar.

It is sum figgering, sed Pa, to git a wife, but remember, Bobbie, the only true Mental Arithmetik is whare you shake off the shackles wich bind you, wrap yure bachelor flat around you & lie down to pleasant dreams.
